Hi, [Redacted],

We get this question a lot.

The date on the form refers to the Office of Management and Budget's (OMB's) time frame during which FDA may collect information contained in the form. We generally tell sites that they can continue to use the form, even though the OMB date has passed; it has no impact on the utility of the form itself. We also tell them that FDA does not expect sponsors to ask clinical investigators to routinely "update" forms previously submitted simply because the OMB expiration date has changed.

Unfortunately there is no way to automatically be notified that a new version of the 1572 has been created. I would suggest, however, that at the time a site needs to complete a new form, they visit FDA's Forms Distribution Page (http://www.fda.gov/opacom/morechoices/fdaforms/cder.html) and download the most recent version posted there.

Hope this helps.

Carolyn
