

COL Stephen Craig, MD, USA

Colonel Stephen Craig is an Associate Professor in the Department of Military and Emergency Medicine at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, where he is currently the first year medical student Curriculum Director. He also serves as Assistant Professor in the Department of Medical History and is the Medical Corps History Consultant to the Army Surgeon General. Colonel Craig graduated from the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine in 1982. He earned a Masters Degree in Tropical Medicine and Hygiene from USU in 1991 as part of his Preventive Medicine residency training and graduated from the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research program in 1992. He is board certified in General Preventive Medicine. During his 25-year military career he has served as a flight surgeon with deployed conventional and special operations forces, as chief of preventive medicine at Fort Bragg and West Point, as an epidemiologist at USACHPPM, and as Deputy Chief of Staff for Clinical Operations, 30th Medical Brigade, Heidelberg, Germany. He has published numerous articles on parachute injury and infectious disease epidemiology and military medical history in the medical and open literature. He is completing a biography of former Army Surgeon General George Miller Sternberg.