

MYRKA DELLANOS
USA Freedom Corps–Volunteering PSA

(:60)

I am a child of Cuban immigrants. As a young girl, I volunteered through my church with my mother, because that was what she did. Now, as an adult, with a daughter of my own, I work to bring volunteer services to those who need help in Latin America, and I thoroughly enjoy it because I truly believe that it is better to give than to receive.

This is Myrka Dellanos.

I'll never forget arriving in a poor village in El Salvador to meet a boy I sponsored through a volunteer program. He proudly showed me what my small gifts had given him: a real house, made of concrete, that would be a solid, stable home.

We are such a blessed country, we must give back. I am proud to be an American, and a volunteer.

This is Myrka Dellanos. I was raised by my mother to volunteer, and now I teach my daughter that the saying, "It is better to give than to receive," is not a cliché, it's the truth. When we give, we receive blessings in abundance.
