

Authoritative Selected Science Information

www.science.gov

Facts about Science.gov

Science.gov is a search engine

- For reliable science information selected by 12 science agencies
- With access to more than 47 million pages of government science information from hard-to-access scientific databases and more than 1,700 Web sites.
- Including sources focused on the environment, human health, conservation, energy, biology, earth and ocean sciences, physics, math, chemistry, and more

Science.gov provides

- One-query search capability
- Real-time results, ranked by relevance
- Expanded exploration by topic
- An Alerts Service

Science.gov is supported by

- The Science.gov Alliance, an interagency working group of 17 scientific and technical information organizations within 12 major science agencies
- CENDI, an interagency working group of senior Scientific and Technical Information (STI) Managers

Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Defense, Education, Energy, Health and Human Services, the Interior, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Government Printing Office, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Foundation, with additional support from National Archives and Records Administration

Hosted by the DOE Office of Scientific and Technical Information (OSTI)