

Politics and Policies in the U.S. Health Care System

PM 420 / History 305/405

Fall 2001

Instructor: Theodore M. Brown

Required Books:

Starr, Paul - THE SOCIAL TRANSFORMATION OF AMERICAN MEDICINE

Marmor, Theodore - THE POLITICS OF MEDICARE (2nd edition)

Copies of Starr and Marmor are available at the River Campus and Medical Center bookstores. Other readings will be included in a bound course reader or in folders, both on reserve in the Department of Community and Preventive Medicine. All course readings other than Starr and Marmor will also be available on electronic reserve at Rush Rhees Library.

Seminar Participation and Grading:

This is a seminar course in which active student participation is expected and evaluated as an important component of the course grade. The other major component of the grade is the evaluation of a c. 20-page research paper. To help prepare for this long paper, students will be required to submit a short, 5-page paper by October 12. This paper will be used primarily to assess students' writing skills but may also be used to explore possible topics for the longer research paper. The research paper could be devoted to an intensive study of an institution, a piece of legislation or an administrative policy, or the emergence of new organizational arrangements in the health care system. Topics are to be negotiated between student and instructor, and all term papers should be discussed in detail with the instructor well before final drafting.

The finished draft of the term paper should be handed in no later than Tuesday, December 17. There will be no examinations. Final course grades will not be released until the anonymous course evaluations have been turned in at the end of the semester.
