Our programs tackle current food and farming issues and develop strategies for creating a healthier, more sustainable food and farming future.

How CSAs work:

Community Support Agriculture programs are a great way to support local farmers and, in return, for local farmers to support you. Here's how it works: you buy a "share" of a local farm, in return you receive a box of farm-fresh produce every week during the growing season. The farm benefits from your financial and community support. You benefit by receiving the best local produce and getting to know your farm and farmer. It's a unique and special relationship that builds community, supports our farmers and gives you first-pick to peak-freshness Puget Sound Fresh foods.

Each CSA program is unique: some deliver their boxes to your home or a central pick-up location; some ask you to pick-up on the farm. Some offer extra add-ons, like eggs or flowers; some are produce-only. Some have installment payment plans; some require payment up-front at the start of the season.

This guide offers information on both CSAs and Home Delivery services. Two types of CSAs are included: traditional CSAs that grow most or all of the food on their farm and hybrid models that grow some food and source some food from neighboring farms or farms outside the area. Home delivery services are not CSAs, because they do not farm, but often buy food from local farms.

Join a CSA! It's easy:

- 1) Select a program that fits your lifestyle.
Some things to consider: location of the farm, size and price of share, delivery and pick-up options, growing practices, and on-farm participation opportunities.
- 2) Next, contact the farm.
A phone call to the farm you selected is often the best way to find out about signing up for the program. Some farms also offer online registration.
- 3) Finally, sign up!
You are now part of a community that supports local agriculture. Congratulations!
