Dear FSIS,

I would like to urge you to do extensive testing on all GE products released on the market. I would also like these products to be labeled.

There are many health issues related to these GE foods. It may be possible that these foods can cause increased cancer risks, and cause people who have food allergies unnecessary problems, perhaps even death.

There are also many environmental concerns. GE crops may infect other crops, kill valuable insects that are important to the food chain. This is a huge biology experiment that may go very badly.

Even the Pope and the leaders of the Reform Jewish Movement have expressed concerns over GE and want these foods to be labeled.

These issues are very serious and should not be taken lightly just because of pressure from large companies.

I am a vegetarian and I deserve to know if my tomatoes have fish genes in them. At the current moment since these products are not labeled, how would I know this?

Please consider the above and take the wishes of U.S. Citizens into account.

Sincerely,

Timothy Huesken
