If none of these questions draws out the facts of your life, make up and answer your own! We want to know what you can do and what you have done, and we want your life history. Don't just say "I keep busy but I do nothing worth mentioning"; "keeping the home fires burning" is often the truest social service.

For non-graduates. What year or years were you in Smith and what work did you take? (the college records are sometimes inaccurate.)

One of my most interesting experiences was a trip to Peking, China as a guest to the opening of the Peking Union Medical School. Representatives of various branches of medicine from this country, England - France, the Dutch East Indies, the Philippine Islands, Japan and the various medical schools and districts of China were invited by the China Medical Board -
