Subject: Proposed legislation on credit cards

It's about time! Back in the 80's a friend in the investment banking business told me that the charge to retailers by credit card companies was in itself a license to steal, to say nothing of additional charges and outright robbery done by credit card companies (banks) since then. These folks are simply screwing over the public and should go to jail for usury and high-handed dishonesty, masquerading as honest business practice.

All the Best,

John D. Zeigler
