Symptoms of Serious Health Conditions

PRINT AND GO GUIDE

The following symptoms could be signs of serious health conditions and should be checked by a doctor or nurse. It is important to note that you might feel symptoms in one part of your body that could actually mean a problem in another part. Even if the symptoms don't seem related, they could be. Keep track of your symptoms. If you have any of these symptoms, make an appointment to see your doctor. Listen to what your body is telling you, and be sure to describe every symptom in detail to your doctor.

Note: A chart of diagnostic tests that your provider might order is also available.

Signs of a heart attack

The most common sign of a heart attack is mild or strong pain or discomfort in the center of the chest. It can last more than a few minutes, or it can go away and come back.

Other common signs of a heart attack include:

- pain or discomfort in one or both arms, back, neck, jaw, or stomach
- shortness of breath (feeling like you can't get enough air)

- nausea or vomiting
- feeling faint or woozy
- breaking out in a cold sweat

Warning: Some women may feel very tired, sometimes for days or weeks before a heart attack occurs. Women may also have heartburn, a cough, or heart flutters or lose their appetite.

Signs of a stroke

A stroke happens fast. The most common signs of a stroke are sudden:

- numbness or weakness of the face, arm, or leg, especially on one side of the body
- trouble seeing in one or both eyes
- trouble walking, dizziness, or loss of balance or coordination
- confusion or trouble speaking or understanding
- severe headache with no known cause

If you have any of these symptoms or see anyone with these symptoms, call 911 right away. Every minute counts!
