

Instructions for Form 5329

Additional Taxes Attributable to IRAs, Other Qualified Retirement Plans, Annuities, Modified Endowment Contracts, and MSAs

Section references are to the Internal Revenue Code unless otherwise noted.

General Instructions

Purpose of Form

Use Form 5329 to report any additional taxes on individual retirement arrangements (IRAs), annuities, other qualified retirement plans, modified endowment contracts, or medical savings accounts (MSAs).

Who Must File

You must file Form 5329 if any of the following apply.

- You received a distribution from a qualified retirement plan that is subject to the tax on early distributions, but distribution code 1 is not shown in box 7 of Form 1099-R, Distributions From Pensions, Annuities, Retirement or Profit-Sharing Plans, IRAs, Insurance Contracts, etc.

Note: You do not have to file Form 5329 if distribution code 1 is correctly shown in box 7 of Form 1099-R. Instead, see the instructions for Form 1040, line 54, for how to report the 10% tax directly on Form 1040, line 54.

- You meet an exception to the tax on early distributions, but the correct distribution code for the exception is not shown in box 7 of Form 1099-R.
- You received distributions from education (Ed) IRAs in excess of your qualified higher education expenses.
- Your contributions for 2000 to your traditional IRAs, Roth IRAs, Ed IRAs, or MSAs are more than is allowable or you had an excess contribution on line 16, 24, 32, or 40 of your 1999 Form 5329.
- You did not receive the minimum required distribution from your qualified retirement plan.

TIP If you rolled over part or all of a distribution from a qualified retirement plan, the part rolled over is not subject to the tax on early distributions. See the instructions for Form 1040, lines 15a and 15b or lines 16a and 16b, or Form 1040A, lines 11a and 11b or 12a and 12b, for how to report the rollover.

When and Where To File

File Form 5329 with your 2000 Form 1040 by the due date, including extensions, of your Form 1040.

If you do not have to file a 2000 income tax return, complete and file Form 5329 by itself at the time and place you would be required to file Form 1040. Be sure to include your address on page 1 and your signature and date on page 2. Enclose, but do not attach, a check or money order payable to the “United States Treasury” for any taxes due. Write your social security number and “2000 Form 5329” on the check or money order.

Filing for Previous Tax Years

If you are filing Form 5329 for a previous year, you must use that year's version of the form. For example, if you are paying a tax for 1999, you must use the 1999 Form 5329 to report the tax. If you have other changes, file Form 5329 for that year with Form 1040X, Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. If you do not have any other changes for the previous year, file Form 5329 by itself. See When and Where To File above.

Definitions

Qualified Retirement Plan

A qualified retirement plan includes:

- A qualified pension, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plan (including a 401(k) plan),
- A tax-sheltered annuity contract,
- A qualified annuity plan, and
- An individual retirement account or annuity.

Note: Ed IRAs and MSAs are not qualified retirement plans.

Traditional IRAs

A traditional IRA is any IRA, including a simplified employee pension (SEP) IRA, other than a SIMPLE IRA, Roth IRA, or Ed IRA.

SEP IRAs. A SEP includes a salary reduction SEP.

Early Distribution

Generally, any distribution from your traditional IRA, Roth IRA, or other qualified retirement plan, annuity, or modified endowment contract before you reach age 59½ is an early distribution. See Part I—Tax on Early Distributions on page 2 for details.

Rollover

A rollover is a tax-free distribution of assets from one qualified retirement plan that is reinvested in another plan or the same plan. Generally, you must complete the rollover within 60 days following the distribution. Any taxable amount not rolled over must be included in income and may be subject to the tax on early distributions. See Pub. 590, Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs), for details.

Note: If you instruct the trustee of your plan to transfer funds directly to another plan, the transfer is not considered a rollover. Do not include the amount transferred in income or deduct the amount transferred as a contribution. A transfer from a qualified employee plan to an IRA, however, is considered a rollover.

Compensation

Compensation includes wages, salaries, professional fees, and other pay you receive for services you perform. It also includes sales commissions, commissions on insurance premiums, pay based on a percentage of profits, tips, and bonuses. It includes net earnings from self-employment but only for a trade or business in which your personal services are a material income-producing factor.

For IRAs, treat all taxable alimony received under a decree of divorce or separate maintenance as compensation.

Compensation does not include any amounts received as a pension or annuity and does not include any amount received as deferred compensation.

Taxable compensation is your compensation that is included in gross income reduced by any deductions on Form 1040, lines 27 and 29, but not by any loss from self-employment.

Additional Information

See Pub. 590 and Pub. 575, Pension and Annuity Income.

Specific Instructions

Joint returns. If both you and your spouse are required to file Form 5329, complete a separate form for each of you. Include the combined tax on Form 1040, line 54.

Amended return. If you are filing an amended 2000 Form 5329, check the box at the top of page 1 of the form. Do not use the 2000 Form 5329 to amend your return for any other year. Instead, see Filing for Previous Tax Years on page 1.

Part I—Tax on Early Distributions

In general, if you receive an early distribution (including an involuntary cashout) from a traditional IRA, Roth IRA, or other qualified retirement plan, or a modified endowment contract, the taxable part of the distribution is subject to an additional 10% tax.

The tax on early distributions does not apply to:

- 2000 IRA contributions withdrawn during the year;
- 1999 excess contributions withdrawn in 2000 by the due date (including extensions) of your 1999 tax return;
- Excess IRA contributions for years before 1999 withdrawn in 2000 and 1999 excess contributions withdrawn after the due date (including extensions) of your 1999 tax return if (a) no deduction was allowable (without regard to the modified adjusted gross income (AGI) limitation) nor taken for the excess contributions and (b) your total IRA contributions for the tax year for which the excess contributions were made were not more than $2,250 for tax years before 1997 or $2,000 for tax years after 1996 (if your total contributions for the year included employer contributions to a SEP, increase that amount by the smaller of the employer contributions or $30,000);
- Distributions from a traditional or SIMPLE IRA that were converted to a Roth IRA;
- Distributions of excess contributions from a qualified cash or deferred arrangement;
- Distributions of excess aggregate contributions to meet nondiscrimination requirements for employee contributions and matching employer contributions;
- Distributions of excess deferrals; and
- Amounts distributed from unfunded deferred compensation plans of tax-exempt or state and local government employers.

See the instructions for line 2 on this page for other distributions that are not subject to the tax.

Line 1

Enter the taxable amount of early distributions you received from:

- A qualified retirement plan, including traditional IRAs and Roth IRAs (and income earned on excess contributions to your traditional IRAs and Roth IRAs), or
- A modified endowment contract entered into after June 20, 1988.

Exception for Roth IRA Distributions

If you received an early distribution from a Roth IRA, include on line 1 the amount from your 2000 Form 8606, line 19, reduced by the amount, if any, allocable to the amount on your 1998, 1999, or 2000 Form 8606, line 15. The amount on line 19 is allocable (in the order shown) to the amounts on the lines listed below (to the extent a distribution from line 20 of your 1998 Form 8606 or line 19 of your 1999 Form 8606 was not allocable to the amount below.) See Are Distributions From My Roth IRA Taxable? in Pub. 590 for details.

- Your 1998 Form 8606, line 16.
- Your 1998 Form 8606, line 15.
- Your 1999 Form 8606, line 16.
- Your 1999 Form 8606, line 15.
- Your 2000 Form 8606, line 16.
- Your 2000 Form 8606, line 15.
- Your 2000 Form 8606, line 26.

Example. You converted $20,000 from a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA in 1998 and converted $10,000 in 1999. Your 1998 Form 8606 had $5,000 on line 15 and $15,000 on line 16 and your 1999 Form 8606 had $3,000 on line 15 and $7,000 on line 16. You made Roth IRA contributions of $2,000 for 1998 and 1999. You did not make any Roth IRA conversions or contributions for 2000 or 2001 or take any Roth IRA distributions in 1998 or 1999. On July 9, 2000, at age 58, you took a $33,000 distribution from your Roth IRA. The first $4,000 of the distribution is allocated to your two $2,000 Roth IRA contributions, and $29,000 is shown on your 2000 Form 8606, line 19. Next, $15,000 of the $29,000 is allocated first to your 1998 Form 8606, line 16, then $5,000 to your 1998 Form 8606, line 15, and $7,000 to your 1999 Form 8606, line 16. The remaining $2,000 is allocated to the $3,000 on your 1999 Form 8606, line 15. Your amount subject to tax on early distributions to enter on line 1 is $22,000 ($29,000 minus the sum of $5,000 and $2,000). If you take a Roth IRA distribution in 2001, the first $1,000 will be allocated to the $1,000 remaining from your 1999 Form 8606, line 15, and will not be subject to the tax on early distributions.

Certain prohibited transactions, such as borrowing from your IRA or pledging your IRA assets as security for a loan, are considered to be taxable distributions and may also cause you to owe the tax on early distributions. See Pub. 590 for details.

Line 2

The 10% additional tax does not apply to the distributions described below. Enter on line 2 the amount that can be excluded. In the space provided, enter the applicable exception number (01-11).

No. Exception

- 01 Distribution due to separation from service in or after the year of reaching age 55 (applies only to qualified employee plans).
- 02 Distribution made as part of a series of substantially equal periodic payments (made at least annually) for your life (or life expectancy) or the joint lives (or joint life expectancies) of you and your designated beneficiary (if from a qualified employee plan, payments must begin after separation from service).
- 03 Distribution due to total and permanent disability.
- 04 Distribution due to death (does not apply to modified endowment contracts).
- 05 Distribution to the extent you have deductible medical expenses that can be claimed on line 4 of Schedule A (Form 1040) (does not apply to annuity or modified endowment contracts).
- 06 Distributions made to an alternate payee under a qualified domestic relations order (applies only to qualified employee plans).
- 07 Distributions made to unemployed individuals for health insurance premiums (applies only to IRAs).
- 08 Distributions made for higher education expenses (applies only to IRAs).
- 09 Distributions made for purchase of a first home, up to $10,000 (applies only to IRAs).
- 10 Distributions due to an IRS levy of the qualified plan.
- 11 Other (see instructions below).

Other. The following exceptions also apply.

- A distribution was incorrectly indicated as an early distribution by a code 1 or S in box 7 of Form 1099-R. Include on line 2 the amount you received when you were age 59½ or older.

- Any distributions from a plan maintained by an employer if:

1. You separated from service by March 1, 1986;

2. As of March 1, 1986, your entire interest was in pay status under a written election that provides a specific schedule for distribution of your entire interest; and

3. The distribution is actually being made under the written election.

- Distributions that are dividends paid with respect to stock described in section 404(k).

- Distributions from annuity contracts to the extent that the distributions are allocable to the investment in the contract before August 14, 1982.

For additional exceptions that apply to annuities, see Pub. 575.

Line 4

If any amount on line 3 was a distribution from a SIMPLE retirement plan received within 2 years from the date you first participated in the plan, you must multiply that amount by 25% instead of 10%.

These distributions are included in boxes 1 and 2a of Form 1099-R and are designated with code S in box 7.

Part II—Tax on Certain Taxable Distributions From Education (Ed) IRAs

Line 6

The 10% additional tax does not apply to distributions that are:

- Due to the death or disability of the beneficiary;
- Made on account of a tax-free scholarship, allowance, or payment described in section 25A(g)(2); or
- Taxable solely because you elected to waive any exclusion you may be entitled to for your 2000 qualified higher education expenses. (This election was made by checking the "Yes" box on line 29 of Form 8606.)
- Excess contributions to an Ed IRA that are distributed to you by the due date of your return (including extensions). The distribution must include earnings on the excess contributions.

Enter on line 6 the total amount that can be excluded from the 10% additional tax.

Part III—Tax on Excess Contributions to Traditional IRAs

If you contributed more to your traditional IRA for 2000 than is allowable or you had an excess contribution from prior years on line 16 of your 1999 Form 5329, you may owe this tax. But you may be able to avoid the tax on any 2000 excess contributions. See the instructions for line 15.

Line 10

If you contributed less to your traditional IRA for 2000 than your contribution limit, enter the difference.

If you are not married filing jointly, your contribution limit is the smaller of $2,000 or your taxable compensation (see page 1). If you are married filing jointly, your contribution limit is generally $2,000. But if the combined taxable compensation for you and your spouse is less than $4,000, see How Much Can Be Contributed? in Pub. 590 for special rules.

Also include on line 9a or 9b of the IRA Deduction Worksheet in the instructions for Form 1040, line 23, the smaller of (a)

Form 5329, line 10, or (b) the excess, if any, of Form 5329, line 9, over the sum of Form 5329, lines 11 and 12.

Line 11

Enter on line 11 any withdrawals from your IRA in 2000 that are included in your income. Do not include any withdrawn contributions that will be reported on line 12.

Line 12

Enter any excess contributions to your IRA for 1976 through 1998 that you withdrew in 2000. Also include any 1999 excess contributions that you withdrew after the due date (including extensions) of your 1999 income tax return if:

- You did not claim a deduction for the excess and no deduction was allowable (without regard to the modified AGI limitation) and
- The total contributions to your IRA for the tax year for which the excess contributions were made were not more than $2,250 for tax years before 1997 or $2,000 for tax years after 1996. (If the total contributions for the year included employer contributions to a SEP, increase that amount by the smaller of the amount of the employer contributions or $30,000.)

Line 15

Enter the excess of your contributions to traditional IRAs for 2000 over your contribution limit (unless you properly withdraw the excess contributions—see below). See the instructions for line 10 to figure your contribution limit.

Any amount you contribute to a traditional IRA for the year in which you reach age 70½ or a later year is an excess contribution (that is, your contribution limit is zero). Do not include rollover contributions in figuring your excess contributions.

You may withdraw some or all of your excess contributions for 2000 and they will not be treated as excess contributions if:

- You make the withdrawal by the due date, including extensions, of your 2000 tax return,
- You do not claim a deduction for the amount of the withdrawn contribution, and
- You withdraw any income earned on the contribution and report the earnings on Form 1040 for the year in which you made the contribution. Also, if you had not reached age 59½ at the time of the withdrawal, include the earnings as an early distribution on line 1 of Form 5329 for the year in which you report the earnings.

Part IV—Tax on Excess Contributions to Roth IRAs

If you contributed more to your Roth IRA for 2000 than is allowable or you had an excess contribution on line 24 of your 1999 Form 5329, you may owe this tax. But you may be able to avoid the tax on any 2000 excess contributions. See the instructions for line 23.

Line 19

If you contributed less to your Roth IRA for 2000 than your contribution limit for Roth IRAs, enter the difference. Your contribution limit for Roth IRAs is generally your contribution limit for traditional IRAs (see the instructions for line 10) reduced by the amount you contributed to traditional IRAs. But your contribution limit for Roth IRAs may be further reduced or eliminated if your modified AGI for Roth IRA purposes is over:

- $150,000 if married filing jointly,
- $0 if married filing separately and you lived with your spouse at any time in 2000, or
- $95,000 for any other taxpayer.

See Pub. 590 for details.

Line 23

Enter the amount you contributed to Roth IRAs for 2000 in excess of your contribution limit for Roth IRAs (see the instructions for line 19). Do not include rollovers. Any amounts converted from a traditional IRA or SIMPLE IRA to a Roth IRA are excess contributions if your modified AGI for Roth IRA purposes is over $100,000 or your filing status is married filing separately and you lived with your spouse at any time in 2000. See "Recharacterizations" in the Instructions for Form 8606, and Pub. 590, for details.

You may withdraw some or all of your excess contributions for 2000 and they will not be treated as excess contributions or taxed as distributions if:

- You make the withdrawal by the due date, including extensions, of your 2000 tax return and
- You withdraw any income earned on the withdrawn contribution and report the earnings on Form 1040 for the year in which you made the contribution. Also, if you had not reached age 59½ at the time of the withdrawal, include the earnings as an early distribution on line 1 of Form 5329 for the year in which you report the earnings.

Part V—Tax on Excess Contributions to Ed IRAs

If the contributions to your Ed IRAs for 2000 were more than is allowable or an excess contribution is shown on line 32 of your 1999 Form 5329, you may owe this tax. But you may be able to avoid the tax on any 2000 excess contributions. See the instructions for line 31.

Line 27

Enter the excess, if any, of the maximum amount that may be contributed to your Ed IRAs for 2000 over the amount actually contributed in 2000. See the instructions for line 31 to figure the maximum amount that may be contributed.

Line 31

Enter the excess of the contributions to your Ed IRAs in 2000 (not including rollovers) over your contribution limit for Ed IRAs. Your contribution limit is the smaller of $500 or the sum of the maximum amounts allowed to be contributed by the contributor(s) to your Ed IRA(s). The maximum contribution a person may make to an Ed IRA may be limited based on the person's modified AGI. See Pub. 590 for details.

Also, all amounts contributed to an Ed IRA are excess contributions if any amount is contributed to a qualified state tuition program for the same beneficiary (except for contributions to a qualified state tuition program made from a distribution from the beneficiary's Ed IRA).

You may withdraw some or all of the excess contributions for 2000 and they will not be treated as excess contributions or taxed as distributions if:

- You make the withdrawal by the due date, including extensions, of your 2000 tax return (or by the date your return would be due if you were required to file a return) and
- You also withdraw any income earned on the withdrawn contribution and include the earnings in gross income for 2000.

Part VI—Tax on Excess Contributions to Medical Savings Accounts (MSAs)

If you or your employer contributed more to your MSA for 2000 than is allowable or an excess contribution from prior years is shown on line 39 of your 1999 Form 5329, you may owe this tax. But you may be able to avoid the tax on any 2000 excess contributions. See the instructions for line 39.

Line 35

If the contribution limit for your MSA (the smaller of line 3 or line 4 of Form 8853) is greater than the contributions to your MSA for 2000, enter the difference on line 35. Also include on line 5 of your 2000 Form 8853 the smaller of:

- Form 5329, line 35, or
- The excess, if any, of Form 5329, line 34, over Form 5329, line 36.

Line 39

Enter the excess of your contributions to your MSA for 2000 (from Form 8853, line 2) over your contribution limit (the smaller of line 3 or line 4 of Form 8853). However, you may withdraw some or all of the excess contributions for 2000 and they will not be treated as excess contributions or taxed as a distribution if:

- You make the withdrawal by the due date, including extensions, of your 2000 tax return and
- You withdraw any income earned on the withdrawn contribution and include the earnings in gross income for the year in which you receive the withdrawn contribution and earnings.

Include the withdrawn contribution and related earnings on Form 8853, lines 6a and 6b.

Also include on line 39 any excess contributions your employer made. See Form 8853 for details.

Part VII—Tax on Excess Accumulation in Qualified Retirement Plans

You owe this tax if you do not receive the minimum required distribution from your qualified retirement plan (including an IRA or an eligible deferred compensation plan under section 457 but not an Ed IRA or a Roth IRA). The additional tax is 50% of the excess accumulation (the difference between the amount that was required to be distributed and the amount that was actually distributed).

Required Distributions

IRA (other than an Ed IRA or a Roth IRA). You must start receiving distributions from your IRA by April 1 of the year following the year in which you reach age 70½. At that time, you may receive your entire interest in the IRA or begin receiving periodic distributions over your life expectancy or over the joint life expectancy of you and your designated beneficiary (or over a shorter period).

If you choose to receive periodic distributions, you must receive a minimum required distribution each year. Figure the minimum required distribution by dividing the account balance of the IRA on December 31 of the year preceding the distribution by the applicable life expectancy. For applicable life expectancies, you must use the expected return multiples from the tables in Pub. 590 or Pub. 939, General Rule for Pensions and Annuities.

Under an alternative method, if you have more than one IRA, you may take the minimum distribution from any one or more of the individual IRAs.

For more details on the minimum distribution rules (including examples), see Pub. 590.

Qualified pension, profit-sharing, stock bonus, or section 457 deferred compensation plan. In general, you must begin receiving distributions from your plan no later than April 1 following the later of (a) the year in which you reach age 70½ or (b) the year in which you retire.

Exception. If you owned more than 5% of the employer maintaining the plan, you must begin receiving distributions no later than April 1 of the year following the year in which you reach age 70½, regardless of when you retire.

Your plan administrator figures the amount that must be distributed each year.

Note: The IRS may waive this tax if you can show that any shortfall in the amount of withdrawals was due to reasonable error and you are taking appropriate steps to remedy the shortfall. If you believe you qualify for this relief, file Form 5329, pay the tax, and attach a letter of explanation. If the IRS waives the tax, we will send you a refund.
