Daily Quote...

"More than 60 per cent of Americans over 30 want to maintain Social Security as close as possible to the existing system rather than see the radical overhaul planned by President George W. Bush – his top domestic priority. . . . 'It is not necessary to dismantle the system in order to save it, or to create trillions of dollars of government debt on top of the country's existing fiscal problems,' said Bill Novelli, AARP chief executive."
