Dear Friend,

Government should be responsive, accountable and understandable.

As an elected official, my role is to be a bridge between the County and its citizens by providing accurate and current information, and listening to your advice on how to improve our government's existing programs and services. My staff and I try to be acutely aware of your needs.

This comprehensive guide provides you with a directory of King County agencies and offices, as well as a list of local and statewide officials. I hope you find this booklet helpful and informative, and I trust it will prove useful in resolving future questions, concerns, or disputes involving all levels of government.

While we have made every attempt to ensure the accuracy of the information in this guide, some agencies and offices may change phone numbers. If you need an updated address or phone number, please call the King County Information Line (206) 296-0100, toll free (800) 325-6165, or my office directly at (206) 296-1007.

With best wishes,

King County Government

King County's population and topography are marked by rich variety and contrast. Stretching from the shores of Puget Sound to the crest of the Cascade Mountains, the land offers urban landscapes, beaches, pastures, forests and rugged mountain peaks. Home to over 1.8 million residents, King County has a population comparable to the state of Nebraska, and a land area over twice the size of Rhode Island.

In 1968, King County became the first Home Rule Charter County in the state. Drafted by a group of citizen freeholders and approved by the voters, the charter established the office of the County Executive and County Council. Under this measure the county operates much like a federal or state government, with three distinct branches: legislative, executive, and judicial.
