Dear Don:

It would be an interesting challenge to explain what RMP did do and why it was terminated. I would be willing to add my perceptions and recollections to the effort.

Having retired, I no longer have a travel budget and would have to have those costs covered.

After receiving your letter and reflecting on the questions you posed, it occurred to me that the effect of RMP on your own work and subsequent career line might well typify one of RMP's more notable contributions.

Sincerely,

Paul
