JUN 21 2007

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This is the second response to your letter of April 12, 2007, co-signed by Ranking Minority Member Joe Barton, Chairman Bart Stupak, Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, and Ranking Minority Member Ed Whitfield, in which you inquired about compensation practices at the Food and Drug Administration (FDA or the Agency). Specifically, you requested records related to compensation for time set aside for religious observances.

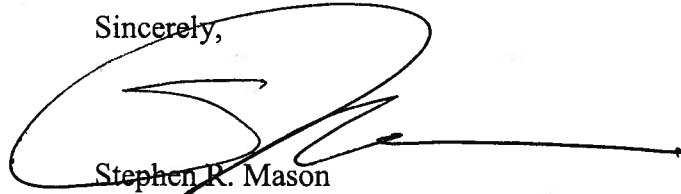

As indicated in our response on June 11, 2007, for the period of time beginning in January 1, 2002:

- There are two current FDA employees who received retroactive earnings for time set aside for religious observances. Both employees received these retroactive earnings in error due to personnel action processing issues.
 - In 2007, Joseph Biviano was converted to a Senior Executive Service position. As the personnel action was processed through the Defense Financial Accounting System (DFAS), the system converted any leave balances to which he was not entitled under his new appointment to retroactive earnings. Mr. Biviano received a net payment of $13,552.17 on January 12, 2007, which was the balance of the Religious Compensatory time that appeared in his leave record. Mr. Biviano returned the funds he received to the Treasury on April 9, 2007.
 - In 2006, Marjorie Shapiro was dropped from the DFAS system in error which resulted in the net payment of $848.44 in September 2006, which was the balance of the Religious Compensatory time that appeared in her leave record. Ms. Shapiro's religious compensatory time has been restored to the DFAS system and she is in the process of returning the funds she received to the Treasury.
