

“ADVENTURES OF LITTLE DRIP”

A Video Produced by the Seattle-King County Health Department

AN EDUCATIONAL VIDEO FOR ELEMENTARY AGE AUDIENCES

"Adventures of Little Drip" features an animated character named Little Drip who percolates an eight-year-old boy named Wyatt through the basics of the hydrologic cycle. The delightful Little Drip needs help because it has fallen off the water cycle. He is rescued by Wyatt who joins him on an adventure through the water cycle. There, Wyatt learns about how human behavior can impact the quality and quantity of our ground water resources.

The presentation of _____ to adults and children is well received.

- After the video was over, Tommy James father told him it was time for bed, Tommy asked "Can I take "Little Drip" with me?"
- Some kids are known to memorize "Little Drip" lines.
- At street fair ground water education booths where "Little Drip" is shown, kids refuse to leave before the video is over.

This fifteen minute educational tool will help you introduce groundwater principles and engage environmental awareness in the video's theme.

Order Form

For more information on the video and ordering details, call or write to Ray Eldridge at (206) 263-6572 or mail order form with payment to: Groundwater Education, Department of Natural Resources and Parks, 201 South Jackson Street, Seattle, WA 98104.

Name: _____ Phone: () _____

Address: _____

Street	City	State	Zip
To Obtain Your Own Video Include Purchase Order, Check, or Money Order
Number of Videos	Video Cost		Shipping
1 or 2	$20.00 each +	$3.00=
3 or 4	$20.00 each +	$3.50=
5 or 6	$20.00 each +	$4.50=

Total

NOTE: because payment is required ordering cannot be done over the Internet.