SEPTEMBER

Hispanic Heritage Month

In 1968, President Lyndon Baines Johnson was called upon to issue an annual proclamation designating the week of September 15 as "National Hispanic Heritage Week." This week was approved by U.S. Congress to designate time to recognize the many contributions of Latinos to the United States. During this week people of the United States had the opportunity to plan and participate in ceremonies and activities that recognized the contributions of the many and diverse cultures within the Hispanic community. The term "Hispanic" is used to describe a very diverse group of individuals. Hispanic peoples living in the U.S. have origins from many different countries with the majority originating from Mexico.

The Hispanic Heritage Week proclamation was amended in 1988 to extend the designated time of recognition. It is celebrated every year from September 15 to October 15. This time encompasses several important days: September 15, which marks Independence Day for Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua; September 16, or Mexican Independence Day; and El Día de la Raza, celebrated October 12.

Despite small settlements in Florida, the major influence of Hispanic culture on our national life and traditions started in the West where the expansion of U.S. territory resulted in the incorporation of a Mexican society. The United States first annexed Texas from Mexico in 1845. At the end of the Mexican-American War in 1848, Mexico ceded California, New Mexico, Nevada, and parts of what are now Colorado, Utah, and Arizona to the United States. Puerto Rican immigration, particularly after the Spanish-American War, also brought significant changes to U.S. culture and society.

Beginning in the 1960s, Hispanics have played an increasingly prominent role in politics and other areas of the country's life. For example, Cesar Chavez, Jose Limon, Raul Julia, and Roberto Clemente have made major contributions to civil rights, the arts, and sports. Issues related to language, education, and political representation are becoming increasingly central to the country's politics, society, and culture as Hispanics emerge as the largest minority in America. 	and charity. Muslims believe that during the month of Ramadan, Allah revealed the	first verses of the Qur'an, the holy book of Islam. Muslims practice sawm, or fasting, for the entire month of Rama	dan. This means that they may eat or drink nothing, including water, while the sun shines. Ramadan ends with the fo	estival of Eid al-Fitr, which in 2006 occurs on Oct. 24. Literally the "Festival of Breaking the Fast," Eid al-Fitr is or	ne of the two most important Islamic celebrations (the other occurs after the Hajj, or pilgrimage to Mecca).

OCTOBER

National Disability Employment Awareness Month

American with Disabilities Act (July 26, 1990). Signed into law on this date, this milestone of U.S. civil rights legislation protects people with disabilities from discrimination in the areas of employment, transportation, and public accommodation. (Earlier legislation had addressed discrimination in housing.) The law requires a wide range of public and private establishments to make new and renovated facilities accessible to people with disabilities and to make "readily achievable" changes to existing facilities in order to increase accessibility.

National Disability Employment Awareness Month was first issued by president proclamation in 1998. The idea of setting aside a time to recognize the importance of employing disabled persons has existed since 1945, when it began as "National Employ the Handicapped Week."

NOVEMBER

National American Indian Heritage Month

The term "American Indian" incorporates hundreds of different tribes and approximately 250 languages. Starting in 1976 as Native American Indian Week, the period was expanded by Congress and approved by President Bush in August 1990 by designating the month of November as National American Indian Heritage Month. In his proclamation for 1996, President Clinton noted, "Throughout our history, American Indian and Alaska Native peoples have been an integral part of the American character. Against all odds, America's first people have endured, and they remain a vital cultural, political, social, and moral presence." For more information, contact the Bureau of Indian Affairs at 202/219-4150.

Dec	HANUKKAH. This holiday commemorates the victory of the Jewish people, led by
22-29	Syrian Greeks in 165 B.C.E. This victory marked the end of a three-year period of r Jewish independence, and ensured the survival of monotheism. According to legend, when the Jews returned to cleanse their temple, which had been defiled by pagan worship, they discovered only enough consecrated oil to keep the holy lamp burning for one day. However, the oil miraculously lasted eight of a new supply. Hanukkah is celebrated by lighting a candle on each of the eight days	of celebration. On the first night, one candle is lit in a branched candlestick called the Menorah, and an addition	al candle is lit each night until the eighth night. This ceremony has given the holiday the additional name of "Festiv	ral of Lights." Hanukkah is joyfully celebrated. Special Hebrew hymns, including "Rock of Ages," are sung, fami	lly members exchange gifts, and children play with a dreidel, a four-sided top inscribed with the Hebrew letters for "a	great miracle happened there."
	Potato pancakes (latkes) are a traditional food treat, with the oil used for cooking rec	calling the oil in the sacred lamp.
