Climb the mountains and get their good tidings. Nature's peace will flow into you as sunshine flows into trees. The winds will blow their own freshness into you, and the storms their energy, while cares will drop off like autumn leaves.
- John Muir

Tread Lightly

More and more people and horses are taking to the trails to discover and enjoy the wild lands of the Pacific Northwest. Many of these individuals and their hooved friends are causing harmful impacts to the very areas and natural resources they are trying to enjoy. All visitors are being asked to commit to certain practices that when applied will protect and preserve these beautiful areas.

LEAVE NO TRACE practices are techniques that visitors must use to help reduce and even eliminate any evidence of their visit.

By knowing and applying the following techniques, you will be meeting your responsibility in preserving the beauty and solitude of America's Great Outdoors.

Plan Ahead and Prepare

- Know the regulations and special concerns for the area you plan to visit.
- Visit the backcountry in small groups. Some areas have limits on group size.
- Avoid popular areas during times of high use. Seek out less popular areas.
- Choose equipment and clothing in subdued colors such as green, brown and blue.
- Repackage food into reusable and lightweight containers. Leave cans and bottles at home.

Camp and Travel on Durable Surfaces

- Stay on designated trails. Walk in single file in the middle of the path.
- Do not shortcut trail switchbacks.
- When traveling cross-country, choose the most durable surfaces available such as rock, gravel, dry grasses, or snow.
- Use a map and compass to eliminate the need to rock pile, tree scar, or hang ribbons.
- Avoid camping on vegetation and limit the number of days in one location to one or two days.
- Keep pollutants out of water sources by camping at least 200 feet (70 adult steps) from lakes and streams.

Pack It In, Pack It Out

- Pack everything that you bring into the wild country back out with you.
- Protect wildlife and your food by storing rations securely.
- Pick up all spilled foods and carry out all leftover food.

Properly Dispose of What You Can't Pack Out

- Deposit human waste in "cat holes" dug 6 to 8 inches deep and at least 200 feet from water, campsites, or trails. Cover and disguise the hole when finished.
- Use toilet paper sparingly. Pack it out.

- To wash yourself or your dishes, carry water 200 feet away from streams or lakes, and use small amount of biodegradable soap. Scatter strained dishwater.
- Inspect your campsite for trash and evidence of your stay. Pack out all trash – yours and other's.

Leave What You Find

- Treat our natural heritage with respect. Leave plants, rocks and historical artifacts as you find them.
- Good campsites are found not made. Altering a site should not be necessary.
- Let nature's sounds prevail. Keep loud voices and noises to a minimum.
- When pets are allowed, be sure to keep them under control. Bury dog feces.
- Do not build structures or furniture or dig trenches.

Minimize Use and Impact of Fires

- Campfires can cause lasting impacts to the backcountry. Always carry a lightweight stove for cooking. Enjoy a candle lantern instead of a fire.
- Where fires are permitted, use established fire rings, fire pans, or mound fires. Do not scar large rocks or overhangs.
- Gather sticks no larger than an adult's wrist in diameter for firewood.
- Do not snap branches off live, dead or downed trees.
- Put out campfires completely.
- Remove all unburned trash from fire ring and scatter the cool ashes over a large area well away from camp and water.

Lily Glen Horse Camp

Information

(541) 774-8183

Directions

Traveling south on 1-5, take the second Ashland exit. Travel east on Dead Indian Memorial Road climbing up the hill then dropping down toward Howard Prairie Reservoir. Travel past the turnoff to Howard Prairie Resort, approximately ½-mile. Look for the large barn and corrals on the right side of the road. For an easier “haul” but a few extra miles, take Hwy 140 from White City east toward Klamath Falls. Turn south at North Fork Campground Road. Turn right on Dead Indian Road. Lily Glen is about 4 miles on the left.

Elevation

Facilities

Barn area and 32 corrals are in the two group reservation areas along with 8 campsites. The first-come first-serve camping area is just inside the gate and to the left. There are 8 sites available, most with 2-horse corrals. Also, an accessible site is available near the restroom. There are two hand pumps for potable water and horse water, fire pits, and restrooms for both areas. Manure dumpsite within camp. Bring a wheelbarrow. This is a heavily used area from June to September.

Activities

Abundant trail riding. You may ride around Howard Prairie Lake or take off into mountainous areas. You may ride anywhere on the north or south side of Dead Indian Road, most of which is BLM. This was once the stage stop between Klamath Falls and Ashland and the barn is historic but very usable. There is a small stream to cross in the summer (larger in early spring) but most horses cross with no problems.
