

A Park System for the Nation's Capital

PUBLIC PREVIEW

Please join the National Capital Planning Commission, the District of Columbia, and the National Park Service as we discuss early findings of CapitalSpace—a joint initiative designed to create a high-quality and unified park system for Washington, D.C.

Learn about key opportunities for improving our parks and open spaces, and the results of the first inventory and parks assessment in more than 30 years.

When: Thursday, April 5, 2007

5:30 PM - 6:00 PM Public Preview

6:00 PM - 7:30 PM Presentation and Question and Answer

Who: National Capital Planning Commission, District of Columbia Department of Parks and Recreation, District of Columbia Office of Planning, and the National Park Service

Where: Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Library
901 G Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20001
Metro: Gallery Place (9th and G Street exit)

Share your thoughts on the challenges and opportunities of this initiative and help guide our efforts. Your RSVP is appreciated by Monday, April 2nd to CapitalSpace@ncpc.gov or 202-482-7252.

To learn more about CapitalSpace, visit Planning Initiatives at www.ncpc.gov

