

Charles C. Coutant, Environmental Sciences

For his extraordinary scientific contributions over a 32-year career at ORNL, which include publications in the area of thermal effects of power production on aquatic ecosystems that have influenced two generations of policy makers, and leadership in restoring river systems affected by hydropower development

E. Ward Plummer, Solid State

For outstanding sustained achievement and leadership in surface science research, funding, mentoring, and service to the scientific community

G. Malcolm Stocks, Metals and Ceramics

For extraordinary contributions to alloy theory and the application of advanced parallel computing techniques to materials science