ABOUT SACRED CIRCLE: NATIONAL RESOURCE CENTER TO END VIOLENCE AGAINST NATIVE WOMEN

Sacred Circle, National Resource Center to End Violence Against Native Women was established in 1998 as the fifth member of the domestic violence resource center network originally created in 1993 by the US Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Children and Families. Sacred Circle provides technical assistance, policy development, training, materials and resource information regarding domestic and sexual violence to develop coordinated tribal response in Native nations. Sacred Circle is dedicated to actions that promote the sovereignty and safety of Native women. Located in Rapid City, South Dakota, Sacred Circle is a project of Cangleska, Inc. on the Pine Ridge Reservation.

SACRED CIRCLE PROVIDES RESOURCES TO:

- Increase Indian Nations' capacity to provide advocacy and resources to women and their children victimized by battering and sexual assault through technical assistance, model programming, training and information that is culturally relevant.
- Enhance tribal justice system's ability to provide for victim safety and batterer accountability through analysis and development of models for codes, policies, procedures and protocols.

- Expand tribal law enforcement's capacity to respond to domestic violence by providing specific training, information and model policy, procedure and protocols.
- Provide tribal service providers with training and programming about development and facilitation of batterer's programs.
- Increase community awareness and grassroots support for coordinated community response.
- Enhance tribes' and tribal organizations' creation of coordinated tribal response efforts, including advocacy and shelter programs, criminal justice, law enforcement and other systems.
- Enhance the potential for change and continuity by strengthening the infrastructure of tribal organizations responding to violence against women.
- Analyze national policies and practices that impact violence against women initiatives in tribal communities.

ENDING VIOLENCE AGAINST NATIVE WOMEN

Description: The Ending Violence Against Native Women Training Institute provides a strong foundation for advocates and their allies to work effectively within their own programs and within a coordinated response. The Institute offers the opportunity for a shared understanding of the root causes, dynamics and effective response to violence against Native women. It is also recommended that regardless of job description everyone attend the Role of Shelter and Advocacy workshop. It is our responsibility as relatives to act as advocates for women who are battered.

Details: Participants will select one workshop to attend. Training will begin at 8:15 a.m. Monday and end at 3:45 p.m. Friday. Please bring a copy of your tribal domestic violence code, law enforcement and/or prosecution policies and procedures. Plan to attend the Tuesday evening banquet hosted by Sacred Circle in honor of the work done to end violence against native women.

LEGAL ADVOCACY: Safety & Justice for Native Women Who are Battered

Description: Legal advocacy means seeking safety and justice within the criminal justice system for Native women who are battered on an individual basis and as a system wide response. The work of all advocates to increase the safety of women requires basic knowledge about provision of legal advocacy specifically.

Topics:

- Legal advocacy in terms of women's sovereignty
- Tribal court practices and codes
- Assistance in civil and criminal proceedings
- Jurisdictional issues
- Child custody
- Appropriate response to challenges to confidentiality and advocate safety.

ADVOCACY FOR CHILDREN OF NATIVE WOMEN WHO ARE BATTERED

Description: Advocacy for the children of Native women who have been battered is integral to the safety of both children and women. Woman abuse is child abuse. This workshop examines the roles of child advocates, social workers and child protection workers.

Topics:

- Helping children understand the violence they've witnessed
- Creating collaborative relationships with other programs
- Responding to the batterer's use of children to maintain control over women
- Systems advocacy to prevent the re-victimization of women and their children
- Advocates, child protection workers and social workers will have the opportunity to focus on specific issues related to their work.

AWESOME ADVOCATE, MEDIOCRE ADMINISTRATOR

Creative Approaches to Fiscal/Administrative Accountability & Women's Safety

Description: How does the administrative/fiscal aspect of a shelter/advocacy program work to enhance the safety of Native women who are battered? How does an organization satisfy funders who may or may not have the same philosophical foundation that we do? This workshop addresses grant preparation and management, progress reports and financial policy and procedure that reflect the unique needs of shelters and advocacy programs working to stop violence against Native women.

Topics include tangible skill building in the areas of:

- Proposal writing
- What should and shouldn't be in progress reports
- Working with program managers
- Fiscal accountability and confidentiality

A NEW RESPONSE TO YOUR TRAINING NEEDS

Sacred Circle, National Resource Center to End Violence Against Native Women has a new approach to offering workshops for 2003:

The Workshop Partnership Program is an opportunity for your organization to partner with Sacred Circle to facilitate a workshop of your choice, at your site, on your schedule, with negotiable costs.

If you are interested in partnering with Sacred Circle, simply choose a workshop from the list on the following page, complete the "Workshop Partnership Request" form and fax it to Sacred Circle.

We'll contact you to visit about training interests, and, negotiate a contract tailored to meet your needs and budget.

"Up-to-date information, well-organized and helpful. Materials will be put to good use!"

Workshop Participant

WORKSHOP PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM

WORKSHOP CHOICES:

- Advocacy for Native Women who have been Raped
- Advanced Training: Law Enforcement Response to Domestic Violence
- Connections: Chemical Dependency and Battering
- Legal Advocacy: Safety and Justice for Native Women who are Battered
- Advanced Training: Facilitating Native Men's Re-education Classes
- Awesome Advocate, Mediocre Administrator? Creative Approaches to Fiscal/Administrative Accountability and Women's Safety
- Advocacy for Children of Native Women who are Battered
- Probation: Systems' Approach to Domestic Violence
- Other topics related to ending violence against Native Women, establishing shelter/advocacy programs and coordinated tribal response.

AS YOUR TRAINING PARTNER, SACRED CIRCLE:

- Identifies workshop facilitators
- Provides workshop materials
- Assists in acquiring continuing education credits
- Provides support in development of public education activities
- Assists in workshop publicity
- Provides ongoing technical assistance

AS OUR TRAINING PARTNER, YOUR ORGANIZATION PROVIDES:

- Minimum three months advanced application for workshops with a maximum of 50 participants; minimum four months advanced application for workshops with over 50 participants
- Minimum 30 participants, majority being advocates, law enforcement, criminal justice personnel, others involved in the coordinated community response
- Scholarships for women who have been battered/or raped to attend
- Location
- On-site arrangements
- Publicity and recruitment of participants

A major aspect of Sacred Circle's mission is to develop grassroots expertise within tribal nations that validates the sovereignty of women as individuals in the community and the tribal nation. Unfortunately, the shortage of resources and personnel means Sacred Circle is unable to facilitate general community education workshops. Community members are encouraged to attend the trainings, however, the goal of the workshop is focused on the establishment of advocacy/shelter programs, coordinated response or social change efforts directly related to ending violence against Native women. Sacred Circle can provide technical assistance and information to assist your program in establishing a community education campaign.

*"Very wonderful job.
You helped me, brought me back to why I do this work.
Thank you for opening my eyes again."*
