Attn: FDA proposed rules on genetically engineered foods

To whom it may concern,

I am opposed to voluntary "GE Free" food labelling. I feel it unfairly puts the burden of proof on food growers and processors who elect not to use genetically modified foodstuffs. The onus should fall on those who opt to use the new technology.

While I do not oppose genetic engineering outright, I am opposed to certain practices, especially the introduction of genes encoding for the production of bacterial pesticides into plants. I want to be able to reward growers and processors who share my views, and I fear that cost inherent in proving food to be free from genetic modification would be prohibitive.

Sincerely,

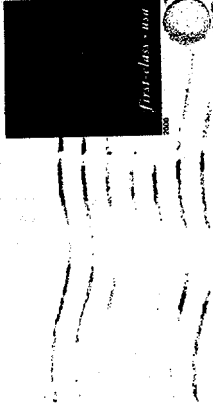

John J Fenske, Ph. D. (Food Chemistry)
