Dear Ms. Henney

I am a Canadian who consumes products from the States.

I care for numerous children & have many family members who have food allergies.

My concern:

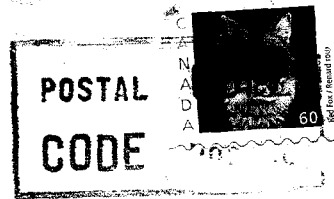

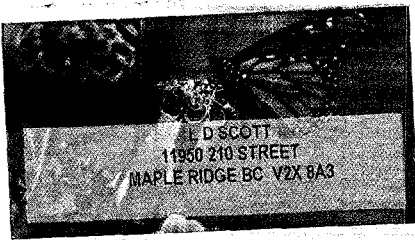

If Genetically Engineered products are not labeled, a "safe" food today may become a health hazard tomorrow.

It is very frightening & frustrating to have a child not breathing or covered in an itchy rash when you have been so careful to provide "safe" foods.

Please think of future generations. Our food is already contaminated & lacking in vital nutritional value. What will "playing" with the genes do???

Yours truly,

L. Scott
