TALENTED CAST DESIGNS World Class facility

It takes a dedicated team to build a "World Class" performing arts center. And Tempe Center for the Arts has assembled an incredible cast.

Supportive and active residents; a dedicated City Council and staff; helpful community and business groups; and strong performing arts organizations, all have joined in setting goals and standards to make the facility an outstanding and unique performance space.

Anchoring the team is a group of equally dedicated architects, planners, designers and artists whose collaboration is taking shape on the southwest bank of the Tempe Town Lake.

Heading the design team is Barton Myers Associates, Inc., of Los Angeles, in cooperation with the Tempe-based architectural design firm ARCHITEKTON. These companies are charged with designing everything from site, floor and theater plans to building elevations, acoustical strategies, seating and landscape plans and more.

"We have created a very special place for the people of Tempe to experience theater," Associate in Charge Peter W. Rutti, of Barton Myers Associates, said. "(We) have taken great care to choreograph the visitor's arrival so that every step of the way one feels (that s/he is) in a very special place. This feeling will be especially evident once one takes a seat in the Main Theater. The intimacy achieved in the room will make one feel as if (s/he is) a part of the performance."

Main Theater balcony

ARCHITEKTON's Joseph M.
Salvatore, AIA, Executive Architect for Tempe Center for the Arts, manages the entire design team and the design process. He understands the importance of the project for Tempe residents.

"The citizens have spoken clearly of their desires for a world class performing arts center with their support of a sales tax increase > dedicated to this project," Salvatore said. "The city is responding with the best of the best for its citizens. Tempe has provided its best site for the project and selected a quintes sential performing arts center design team through an exhaustive search. The new center will exceed any of the highest expectations set for it."

Also in on the action is Theatre Projects Consultants, an international team of experts who specialize in the design of theatres and performance spaces. Theatre Projects combines hands-on, practical experience working in live theatre with extensive experience in designing and building performing arts facilities to produce outstanding and lively theatres that meet the needs of its users and community.

In coming issues, Art Talk will explore some of the unique features currently being constructed from designs by this talented team of professionals.

Art Talk Profile:

One of the longer running duets in community service comes to an end in December. Sheilah Britton and Kathy Stevens have served on the Tempe Municipal Arts Commission for more than six years apiece, each chairing the commission in the one of the last two years.

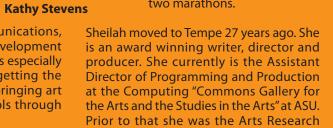

It has been a show spectators and critics hate to see end. The duo has accomplished so much for the Tempe Center for the Arts (TCA), while supporting ongoing programs. Before Kathy and Sheilah start working on their sequels, here is our version of their credits.

Kathy is finishing her second term as chair of the commission. She also has been the chair of the Communications, Executive and Art in Public Development committees. Looking back, she's especially proud of her involvement in getting the TCA on the ballot and about bringing art education back into the schools through the Grants Committee.

Kathy is a native Arizonan and has lived in Tempe since 1973. Her daughter and three grandchildren also live in the Valley. Kathy has worked for Salt River Project for the last 19 years, starting in the phone bank and moving to the Community Relations Area 13 years ago. She has a degree in Organizational Communications from ASU.

In addition to the Arts Commission, Kathy has been involved in the community through Sponsorship Review Board, TCC Agency Review Board for health and human services, the Tempe and Valley Leadership programs and she is currently the President of the Wood Elementary School PTSA. As a past competitive race walker, Kathy has won many medals. She has also competed in the Tour de Tucson and two marathons.

Administrator for the Institute for Studies in the Arts at ASU. She manages specialized research in the fine arts utilizing new forms and technologies.

Sheilah is the immediate past chair of the commission, served on the Public Art Committee and has chaired the Communications Committee. She served on the panel that selected the artists for the TCA.

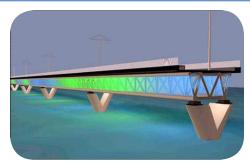

Outside the commission, Sheilah has enjoyed her work on the Tempe Community Council and is especially proud of a writing program she has developed for patients at Mayo Clinic.

Tempe light rail's public art

REFLECTS VIBRANT COMMUNITY

The Valley's light rail system is intended to provide a link between the cities of Phoenix, Tempe, Mesa and Glendale and to be an integral part of a comprehensive Valley-wide transit system.

It also will be a showcase for public art. The seven Tempe light rail stations will feature outstanding artwork that reflects the community's culture, history, people and place in the region. Here's an overview.

5th Street and College Avenue

Artist: Tad Savinar

A series of highly detailed bronze sculptures of natural and man-made landmarks celebrate the place, people and presence of Tempe within the region.

Tad Savinar's artwork showcases natural and man-made regional landmarks, such as Our Lady of Guadalupe and the Arizona Tempe.

3rd Street and Mill Avenue

Artist: Catherine Widgery

sculpture in the center represents a digitized mesquite tree.

Artwork will adorn the walls of the Town Lake light rail bridge.

Apache Boulevard

Artists: Christine Bourdette, Dan Corson, Benson Shaw, Suikang Zhao A team of four artists collaborated on the following four light rail stations along Apache Boulevard.

Dorsey Lane

The artwork at this station features 3-D green screen mosaic inserts focusing on dialogue and different points of view. Pavement artwork radiates from central points and interweaves with the overall platform pattern. An illuminated chrome Saguaro skeleton within the green screen completes the artwork which is meant to explore "the individual and the group."

Price Road

The station will feature 3-D green screen mosaic inserts which reflect the divisions and re-connections made over time, focusing on the canal, the freeway and the strong neighborhood pride that prevails.

Smith Road/Martin Lane

The structure of the family guides the work at this location with 3-D green screen mosaic inserts.

McClintock Drive

The artwork will showcase 3-D green screen mosaic inserts with hourglass-shaped open-
