

New Zealand and Australia Twelve-Month Student Work and Travel Pilot Programs

On September 4, 2007 the United States and Australia signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) initiating a 12-month student work and travel pilot program. This MOU, which went into effect on October 31, 2007, allows American and Australian citizens who are bona fide post-secondary students or recent graduates from post-secondary accredited schools to work and travel in the United States or in Australia for up to twelve months.

A similar 12-month student work and travel pilot program Agreement with New Zealand was signed on September 10, 2007. This agreement went into effect on signature.

Eligibility criteria for participants are noted below.

- Be a citizen of New Zealand or Australia.
- Be a bona fide post-secondary student or recent graduate. To be considered a bona fide post-secondary student, the potential participant must have completed his/her freshman year. A recent graduate is defined as an Australian or New Zealand citizen who has graduated from a post-secondary college/university in their home country within the last 12 months. The applicant must provide evidence of student status.
- Vocational students pursuing studies at a tertiary level accredited educational institution are eligible for participation.
- Provide proof of sufficient financial resources, prior to coming to the United States, to support themselves during a search for employment or between breaks in employment.

For Australian or New Zealand citizens coming to the United States, these pilot programs will operate under the current Exchange Visitor Program Summer Work Travel regulations and in accordance with the guidelines provided to each designated sponsor. Both pilot programs conclude two years after becoming effective. Each approved sponsor organization will receive a separate designation under which the Pilot programs will be administered.

The following organizations have been designated to administer the 12-month student work and travel pilot program. Proposals from additional sponsor organizations are under review and may be added to this list:
