

Help America Get Back to Her Roots . . .

America's roots are anchored in the health and diversity of her land. Our forests and rangelands are suffering a crisis of deteriorating ecological health that interrupted the fire cycle and allowed forests to grow overly dense.

The U.S. Departments of Agriculture and the Interior are reducing the accumulation of combustible forest material and restoring wildfire-damaged areas to a healthier state.

Support Healthy Forests

Currently, 400 million acres are at risk to catastrophic fires due to unhealthy forests and rangeland conditions. Unless land management agencies increase active management, the healthy forests shown in this poster will become scarce.
