

The Effects of Economic Boom and Bust on Oil Spill Response and Prevention

Panel Discussion

This group of several Federal and State Agencies will discuss equipment and resource needs and availability in the inland zone. There will be a discussion of response times, what those times mean for the environment, and discussion of the tradeoffs that need to be made for adequate response. There will also be a discussion of alternative ways to address equipment and personnel shortfalls and alternative response techniques that may employ less equipment or require different training.
