

Table of Contents

	Page Number
Section 1
Introduction	1
Executive Summary	6
Section 2
Can we all eat any fish?	12
Can we drink the water?	20
Can we swim in the water?	23
Are all habitats healthy, naturally diverse, and sufficient to sustain viable biological communities?.....	26
Does the public have access abundant open space, shoreline, and natural areas, and does the public have enhanced opportunities for interaction with the Lake Michigan ecosystem?	41
Are land use, recreation, and economic activities sustainable and supportive of a healthy ecosystem?	45
Are sediments, air, land, and water sources or pathways of contamination that affect the integrity of the ecosystem?	51
Are exotic species controlled and managed?	66
Is collaborative ecosystem management the basis for decision-making in the Lake Michigan Basin?	74
Do we have enough information, data, understanding, and indicators to inform the decision-making process?	78
Section 3
Conclusions and Recommendations.....	84
Glossary	87
Appendix A LaMP Pollutants: Process for Biennial Updates of Lake Michigan LaMP Pollutant List	89
Appendix B Lake Michigan Areas of Concern Matrix.....	96
Appendix C References for the Lake Michigan Mass Balance Project.....	99

Photos courtesy of U.S. EPA Great Lakes National Program Office “Visualizing the Great Lakes” are indicated by an asterisk(*)
<http://www.epa.gov/glnpo/image>

