

FTC Staff -

I would like to see something in place to control these unwanted pornographic SPAM e-mails that are so consistent. If I could get rid of these unwanted e-mails without having to delete them, that would be even better. However, since that is not going to happen soon, I guess having them labeled as adult e-mails would help. Will that get rid of the subject line which is always so incredibly awful? I would not want my granddaughter to even see one of these - can you possibly figure out a way that at least warns me in the subject line that this is a pornographic e-mail without me seeing the subject line? We need this help desperately.
