Hello,

I am in favor of requiring spam be labeled as being sexually explicit.

My social views are liberal, but this type of spam email has gotten completely out of control -- typically I receive ten times as many such spams as genuine email communications.

Incidentally, I registered for "donotcall.gov" and the number or sales solicitation calls to my residence have curtailed except for the few legally allowed charities. It is the only program, on a federal level, since Bush took over that has actually benefited my life.

If you can make spam labeled as you suggest, then filters can eliminate it as it comes in. This will be a great first step towards eliminating it altogether, as it is overburdening servers -- which means consumers such as myself actually pay to get this crap.

Thank you,

Nicholas P. DeCarlis
Florida