

During the remand investigation, the Department confirmed that while lace is a distinct type of warp knit fabric, workers producing lace are not separately identifiable from workers producing other types of warp knit fabric.

The Department conducted an expanded sample survey of the subject firm's major declining customers regarding purchases of warp knit fabric, circular knit fabrics and lace knit fabric during the relevant period. The survey revealed that a meaningful portion of the respondents increased their reliance on imports during the relevant period.

Workers at the subject firm possess skills that are not easily transferable to jobs in the local commuting area and at least five percent of the workers at the subject firm is at least fifty years of age. Competitive conditions within the industry are adverse.

Conclusion

After careful review of the additional facts obtained on remand, I conclude that there were increased imports of articles like or directly competitive with those produced by the subject firm that contributed importantly to the worker separations and sales or production declines at the subject facility. In accordance with the provisions of the Trade Act, I make the following certification:

All workers of Mohican Mills, Inc., Lincolnton, North Carolina who became totally or partially separated from employment on or after December 11, 2002, through two years from the issuance of this revised determination, are eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under Section 223 of the Trade Act of 1974, and are eligible to apply for alternative trade adjustment assistance under Section 246 of the Trade Act of 1974.

Signed in Washington, DC, this 13th day of October 2004.
