Transitory Files (including in electronic form)*B-02-005-01      Transitory Files (including in electronic form)

Description:      Records of short-term (180 days or less) interest, including in electronic form (e.g., email messages), which have minimal or no documentary or evidential value. Included are such records as:

        Routine requests for information or publications and copies of replies which require no administrative action, no policy decision, and no special compilation or research for reply;

        Quasi-official notices including memoranda and other records that do not serve as the basis of official action, such as a notice of holidays or charity and welfare fund appeals, bond campaigns, and similar activities;

        Originating office copies of letters of transmittal that do not add any information to that contained in the transmitted material, and receiving office copy if filed separately from transmitted material;

        Records documenting routine activities containing no substantive information, such as routine notifications of meetings, scheduling of work-related trips and visits, and other scheduling related activities;

        Suspense and tickler files or "to-do" and task lists that serve as a reminder that an action is required on a given date or that a reply to action is expected, and if not received should be traced on a given date.

Disposition:      TEMPORARY: Destroy immediately, or when no longer needed for reference, or according to a predetermined time period or business rule (e.g., implementing the auto-delete feature of electronic mail systems).
