

benefits or ineligible to receive title XVI payments.

Statute/Regulation/Ruling Citation: Sections 202(x)(1)(A) and 1611(e)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 402(x)(1)(A) and 1382(e)(4)); 20 CFR 416.202(f) and 416.1339.

Circuit: Second (Connecticut, New York, Vermont). Fowlkes v. Adamec, 432 F.3d 90 (2nd Cir. 2005).

Applicability of Ruling: This ruling applies to all determinations or decisions at all levels of the administrative review process that an individual is a fugitive felon within the meaning of sections 202(x)(1)(A) and 1611(e)(4) of the Act. This ruling applies to all title II and title XVI applicants, title II beneficiaries, and title XVI recipients who live in Connecticut, New York, or Vermont.

Description of Case: In 1997, Felipe Fowlkes applied for and was found eligible to receive supplemental security income (SSI) disability payments under title XVI of the Act. In September 1999, he was indicted in Virginia on two felony charges. On March 16, 2000, the Agency notified Mr. Fowlkes, who at that time resided in New York, that his eligibility for SSI payments would be suspended retroactively to September 1999 because of two outstanding felony warrants from Virginia. Mr. Fowlkes requested administrative review and, after a hearing, an ALJ issued a decision finding that because he had not satisfied the outstanding felony arrest warrants, Mr. Fowlkes was fleeing to avoid prosecution as described in section 1611(e)(4) of the Act, 42 U.S.C. 1382(e)(4). Accordingly, the ALJ found that suspension of Mr. Fowlkes' SSI payments was proper because he was a fugitive felon under the Act.

Mr. Fowlkes sought judicial review, not under the Act, but based on a claim that the Agency violated his civil rights. The district court dismissed Mr. Fowlkes' civil rights claim, without reaching the issue of whether or not Mr. Fowlkes was a fugitive felon under the Act. On appeal, the Second Circuit converted the action into one seeking review, under section 1631(c)(3) of the Act, of the Agency's fleeing felon determination and remanded the case to the district court for further proceedings consistent with its opinion.

Holding: The Second Circuit held that the Agency could not conclude that an individual is fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody, or confinement from the mere fact that an outstanding felony arrest warrant or similar order exists. Specifically, the court stated that "fleeing" is understood to mean the conscious evasion of arrest or prosecution. The court determined that for "flight" to result in a suspension of benefits, it must be undertaken with the specific intent to avoid prosecution. Accordingly, the court concluded that for the Agency to suspend benefits on the basis that an individual was "fleeing," the Agency must have some evidence that the individual knows that his apprehension is sought. The court found the implementing regulation consistent with this construction of the Act. In addition, the court interpreted the implementing regulation to permit the Agency to suspend benefits only as of the date of a warrant or order issued by a court or other appropriate tribunal on the basis of a finding that an individual has fled or was fleeing from justice.

Statement as to How Fowlkes Differs from the Agency's Policy: We interpret section 1611(e)(4) of the Act to mean that a person is "fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody, or confinement" when a person has an outstanding warrant for his or her arrest, even if that person is unaware of that warrant.

The Second Circuit Court of Appeals rejected this interpretation. The Second Circuit held the term "fleeing" to mean "the conscious evasion of arrest or prosecution." The court determined that for "flight" to result in a suspension of benefits, it must be undertaken with the specific intent to avoid prosecution. Thus, for the Agency to take adverse action against an individual described in the Act as "fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody, or confinement," the Agency must have some evidence that the individual knew his apprehension was sought.

Explanation of How SSA Will Apply the Fowlkes Decision Within the Circuit: This ruling applies to all determinations or decisions at all levels of the administrative review process that an individual is a fugitive felon within the meaning of sections 202(x)(1)(A) and 1611(e)(4) of the Act. This ruling applies to all title II and title XVI applicants, title II beneficiaries and title XVI recipients who live in Connecticut, New York, or Vermont.

We will not use the existence of an outstanding felony arrest warrant or similar order as the sole basis for finding that an individual is fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody, or confinement and is, therefore, a fugitive felon subject to withholding of title II benefits or ineligibility to receive title XVI payments. Before we determine that a title II or title XVI applicant, title II beneficiary, or title XVI recipient is a fugitive felon, we must have evidence that the individual knows that there is an outstanding felony arrest warrant, and the outstanding arrest warrant must have been issued on the basis that the individual has fled or is fleeing from justice.
