

the relevant period. The investigation also revealed that the subject facility closed in December 2005 and that subject company imports increased following the production shift abroad.

The August 16, 2005 petition, filed by the subject company, did not request Alternative Trade Adjustment Assistance (ATAA).

Conclusion

After careful review of the additional facts obtained on reconsideration, I conclude that a shift of production to China followed by increased imports of home furnishings contributed importantly to worker separations at the subject firm.

In accordance with the provisions of the Act, I make the following certification:

“All workers of TexStyle, Inc., Manchester, Kentucky, who became totally or partially separated from employment on or after August 16, 2004, through two years from the date of this certification, are eligible to apply for adjustment assistance under Section 223 of the Trade Act of 1974.”

Signed in Washington, DC, this 18th day of January 2006.

Elliott S. Kushner,
Certifying Officer, Division of Trade Adjustment Assistance.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) § 11(d) authorizes the Secretary of Labor to regulate, restrict, or prohibit industrial homework as necessary to prevent evasion of the minimum wage requirements of the Act. Restrictions exist on seven homework industries, (knitted outerwear, women's apparel, jewelry manufacturing, gloves and mittens, button and buckle manufacturing, handkerchief manufacturing, and embroideries). DOL permits individual industrial homework in these restricted industries only if a special homework certificate is in effect or in certain hardship cases. Homework has always been permitted under the FLSA in all other industries; provided, the employer maintains homeworker handbooks for such employees recording their hours of work and other required payroll information. Form WH-46, Application to Employ Homeworkers, provides the Wage Hour Division (WHD) with a means of identifying employers of homeworkers, and individual workers, in the restricted industries who may not be identified otherwise. The Piece Rate Measurement requires that employers record and retain documentation of the method used to establish pieces rates is necessary so that WHD can verify that rates were properly determined and will result in wage payments to homeworkers at a rate at least equal to the FLSA minimum wage for all hours worked in the work week. Form WH-75, Homeworker Handbook is used to insure that employers fulfill their obligation to obtain and record accurate hours worked information whenever they distribute homework to employees and collect it from them, homeworkers record the information as they perform the work. Individual homeworkers retain their own handbooks until completely filled-in and then return them to the employer. This information collection is currently approved for use through August 31, 2006.

II. Review Focus

The Department of Labor is particularly interested in comments which:

- Evaluate whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information will have practical utility;
