Application Process

1. Complete the Right-of-Use Application. Complete all parts of the right-of-use application. If a particular question or response does not apply to the proposed use, please indicate "not applicable" or "N/A". Attach additional sheets if more space is needed. If you have additional questions, please contact your local Reclamation office. A complete list of all offices can be found at the following web site address: <http://www.usbr.gov>

2. The following must be submitted with the application or attested to before the application may be approved by Reclamation: Two copies of all maps and other information pertinent to the location for the requested use must be submitted with the application before processing can proceed. In accordance with the provisions found in the Code of Federal Regulations Title 43, Part 429.6(d), the applicant may be required to furnish additional material before Reclamation grants a ROU.

3. Enclose an initial deposit fee of $200, payable to the Bureau of Reclamation when submitting your application. You must submit an initial deposit fee of $200 (payable to the Bureau of Reclamation) with your ROU application to cover the estimated minimum administrative costs of Reclamation to review your application. Failure to submit the required minimum initial deposit fee and adequate information will cause delays in evaluation of the application.

The granting of any ROU on Reclamation lands, facilities, or water surfaces is discretionary with Reclamation, and there is no guarantee that any application to use Reclamation lands, facilities, or water surfaces will be approved. If, after a preliminary review of the application, Reclamation determines that the granting of a ROU authorization is not compatible with the present or future uses of the lands, facilities, or water surfaces, the ROU authorization will not be granted. In this event, Reclamation will refund to you $150 of the initial minimum deposit fee within 30 calendar days providing proper banking or electronic funds information is provided to Reclamation in a timely manner. The Code of Federal Regulations Title 43, Part 429 describes the general process that will be used to collect and refund, where appropriate, excess initial deposit fees.

If found compatible with present or future uses, Reclamation will advise you of any additional estimated administrative costs in excess of the initial $200 application fee, which you will be required to pay before further processing of your application continues. Administrative costs include, but are not limited to: Appraisal, appraisal review; compliance with National Environmental Policy and the National Historic Preservation Acts; and Reclamation's review and preparation and issuance of the ROU authorization. In the event the estimated administrative costs exceed the initial deposit fee of $200, you will be required to supplement the initial deposit to make up the difference. If you refuse to accept the agreement after it is prepared and offered by Reclamation, no refund will be made for any of the application fee deposit.

4. Market Value of the ROU (Rental Charge). In addition to the administrative costs, applicants will also be required to pay for the value of the ROU of the lands, facilities, or water surfaces based on the appraised market value of the use prior to issuance of the ROU authorization. Code of Federal Regulations Title 43, Part 429 describes the procedures that will be used to process and recover the value of rights of use.

5. Submit the application, initial deposit fee of $200, and any attachments to your local Reclamation office. No activity may commence until a fully executed right-of-use authorization document is issued by Reclamation.
