I have recently been made aware of the public comment period for GMO's (Genetically Modified Organisms) and thier Labeling. To start with, many people have trust in the companies that say their food is "healthy." Many people do not have time and access to research how their food is grown and prepared. I have 3 children I care for and I love very much. That is why I'm writting you. I buy organic food as much as I can, for thier health mainly. Mixing animal and plant/Fruit/vegetables, etc... genes may have some beneficial properties. They're mainly production and selling benefits. GMOs are not the most ~~beneficratt~~ beneficial foods for human health and consumption. I am FULLY in FAVOR of having foods tested before they hit the market. Labeled as GMOs before reaching store shelves. I feel the labeling should be mandatory not voluntary. Mainly for the people who don't have time and access to research thier food and for Our children.

Thank you
