May 2000

Dear Colleague:

The Office for Victims of Crime (OVC), U.S. Department of Justice, is pleased to present the OVC National Resource Directory of Victim Assistance Funding Opportunities 2000. The directory lists, by State and Territory, the contact names, mailing addresses, telephone numbers, and e-mail addresses for the Federal grant programs that provide assistance to crime victims, including

- Victims of Crime Act (VOCA).
- Violence Against Women Act (VAWA).
- Edward Byrne Memorial State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance (Byrne).
- Preventive Health and Health Services Block Grant (PHHSBG).
- Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (FVPSA).
- Children's Justice Act (CJA) State and Tribal Grant Programs.
- State Victim Service Grant Programs.

In addition, many State governments allocate State funding to assist victims of crime. If a State does allocate such funding, and the administrator responded to OVC's survey by providing contact information, the directory will include the State agency and the contact person.

We sincerely hope this directory is useful to State and local organizations that are interested in applying for State or Federal funding to support crime victim assistance programs. We also hope this Directory will make it easier for Federal and State victim assistance grant administrators to locate each other and communicate. The directory is published annually to provide you up-to-date information. The directory (NCJ# 181042) is available through OVC's Resource Center and Web site. See the contact information below.

With best wishes,

Kathryn M. Turman
Director, Office for Victims of Crime

and

Carol R. Watkins
Director, State Compensation and Assistance Division

Introduction

The Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) developed the OVC National Resource Directory of Victim Assistance Funding Opportunities 2000 in response to requests from State and local crime victim service providers for easy-to-access information about funding opportunities and contacts. The directory also provides a complete listing of professional colleagues nationwide for State victim assistance program administrators.

Although this directory is not an exhaustive listing of funding opportunities for victims, OVC plans to keep gathering data and expanding this resource. To help us expand this directory, OVC encourages you to make note of resources that should be included in future editions. For your convenience, a "new information" form has been included at the back of the "Quick Look" section of the directory. In time, with your feedback, the directory will evolve and expand as OVC continues to compile information about funding sources for crime victim services.

The funding resources profiled in this directory come from several Federal grant programs, including the following:

1. The Edward Byrne Memorial State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance Formula Grant Program (Byrne Program). Administered by the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, Bureau of Justice Assistance.

In 1968, Congress enacted legislation that provided funds for local crime control efforts in States and Territories. This legislation, the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act, established certain precepts: 1) Criminal justice is an integrated system; 2) Reduction of crime requires planning and evaluation of activities; 3) Citizens must participate in crime reduction efforts; 4) Victims' needs must be considered; and 5) government at all levels and disciplines must work together to achieve common goals.

In 1988, Congress enacted the Anti-Drug Abuse Act, which authorizes population-based grants to States. The States in turn subgrant the funds to State agencies, local governments, and other entities. The purpose of the Byrne Program is to help State agencies and local governments initiate innovative projects to reduce drug use and violent crime and to improve the effectiveness of the criminal justice system. The Byrne Program authorizes States to allocate funds to projects that advance this overall strategy.

For more information on the Byrne Program, please contact the Bureau of Justice Assistance at (202) 514-6638.

2. Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (FVPSA). Administered by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), Administration for Children and Families.

The purpose of the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act includes several elements: 1) to help States increase public awareness about family violence, to prevent family violence, and to provide immediate shelter and related assistance for victims of family violence and their dependents; and 2) to provide technical assistance and training related to family violence programs to States and local public agencies, including law enforcement agencies; courts; legal services; social services; health care professionals; and nonprofit, private organizations.

For more information on the FVPSA program, please contact DHHS, Administration for Children and Families at (202) 401-5529.

3. The Preventive Health and Health Services Block Grant (PHHSBG). Administered by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

For Federal fiscal year 2000, Congress appropriated $45,000,000 for rape prevention and education. Congress mandated that at least 25 percent of the PHHSBG grant funds be devoted to education programs for middle and high school students. The remainder of the funds must be used by States to support direct services that offer hotline support and victim counseling, such as rape crisis centers. In addition, this grant can be used for several other purposes, including increasing public awareness through training programs for professionals such as police officers and investigators; preparing informational materials; and promoting other public education efforts organized by State sexual assault coalitions and victim advocates.

For more information about the PHHSBG program, contact The Family and Intimate Violence Prevention Team, Division of Violence Prevention, National Center for Injuries Prevention and Control, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at (770) 488-4410.

4. STOP Violence Against Women Act Program (VAWA). Administered by the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, Violence Against Women Grant Office. The 1994 Violence Against Women Act established four grant programs:

- a) STOP Violence Against Women Formula Grants Program. This program provides grants for States, Territories, and the District of Columbia to develop and implement effective law enforcement and prosecution strategies to combat violent crimes against women and to develop and enhance victim services in cases involving violent crimes against women.

To carry out programs and projects specified in the Violence Against Women Act, funds granted to qualified States may be further subgranted by the State to agencies and programs including, but not limited to, the following: State offices and agencies; public and nonprofit organizations; units of local government; Indian Tribal governments; nonprofit, nongovernmental victim services programs; and legal services programs. Each State must allocate 25 percent of the STOP funds it receives to law enforcement, 25 percent to prosecution, and 25 percent to nonprofit, nongovernmental victim services. The remaining 25 percent may be allocated at the State's discretion within the parameters of the Act.

- b) STOP Violence Against Indian Women Discretionary Grants Program. This program establishes that 4 percent of the amount appropriated each year for the STOP VAWA

Formula Grant Program be allocated for grants to Indian Tribal governments to develop and to strengthen the Tribal justice system's response to violent crimes against Indian women. To ensure development of a coordinated approach, the STOP Violence Against Women Act requires that Tribal governments with law enforcement and prosecution components allocate at least 25 percent of the program's funds respectively to law enforcement; prosecution; and nonprofit, nongovernmental victim services programs.

- c) Rural Domestic Violence and Child Victimization Enforcement Grant Program. This program focuses on the needs and unique characteristics of rural communities in addressing domestic violence and child victimization. The program addresses these issues in appropriate, collaborative ways that improve and increase the services available to women and children while enhancing community involvement in developing a jurisdictional response to domestic violence and child victimization.
- d) Grants to Encourage Arrest Policies. This program focuses on the development and implementation of laws, policies, and protocols that encourage or mandate the arrest of domestic violence offenders based on probable cause that an offense has been committed or when the terms of a valid, outstanding protection order have been violated. To ensure victim safety and perpetrator accountability in domestic violence cases, the program promotes aggressive, system-wide coordination throughout the criminal justice system and the nonprofit, nongovernmental victim service agencies.

For more information about the STOP VAWA Program, please contact the Office of Justice Programs at (202) 307-6026.

- 5. Victims of Crime Act (VOCA). Administered by the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, Office for Victims of Crime. The Victims of Crime Act of 1984 created a repository of fines, fees, and bond forfeitures from convicted Federal offenders. These monies are to be used for crime victims. Through the following programs, funds are made available to States and Territories for crime victims and their service providers:
 - a) VOCA victim compensation provides reimbursement for medical and mental health costs, funeral expenses, and lost wages. States and Territories must also provide compensation to residents who are victims of terrorist acts and mass violence within or outside the United States. Compensation is paid only when other financial resources, such as private insurance or offender restitution, do not cover the loss. Federal and State regulations apply.
 - b) All States and Territories receive an annual VOCA victim assistance formula grant. VOCA authorizes States and Territories to subgrant VOCA funds to agencies and nonprofit organizations the States and Territories believe will best meet the unique needs of crime victims in that community.

VOCA contains three original priority areas for State distribution of victim assistance funds: child abuse, domestic violence, and sexual assault. Additionally, States must award funds to support services to underserved crime victims such as survivors of the victims of DWI/DUI crashes, survivors of victims of homicide, assault victims, adults molested as children, elder abuse victims, robbery victims, and other violent crime victims.

States establish their own victim assistance grant application process according to guidelines developed by OVC. States have maximum discretion to set priorities, establish policies and procedures, identify the services and programs to be funded within the State, and determine the conditions for continued funding. States also assess crime victims' needs statewide, target resources to those areas, and train advocates to improve services for crime victims.

- c) Children's Justice Act Tribal Grant Program. Since 1989, the Federal Crime Victims Division of OVC has provided funding through the Children's Justice Act Partnerships for Indian Communities. These funds are used to help American Indian Tribes develop, establish, and operate programs to improve the investigation, prosecution, and handling of child abuse cases, particularly sexual abuse cases, so that these are conducted in a manner that limits additional trauma to the child victim.

For more information on the Crime Victims Compensation, Crime Victim Assistance, and the CJA Tribal Grant Programs, please contact the Office for Victims of Crime at (202) 307-5983.

6. The Children's Justice and Assistance Act (CJA). The Children's Justice and Assistance Act amended the Victims of Crime Act (VOCA). CJA authorizes grants to States to improve the investigation and prosecution of child abuse and neglect cases, particularly child sexual abuse and exploitation cases, and the handling of child fatality cases in which child abuse or neglect is suspected. CJA directs that such cases be handled in a manner that limits additional trauma to the child victim.

For more information on the Children's Justice and Assistance Act Grant Program, please contact the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration on Children and Families, Children's Bureau at 202/205-8076.

7. State and Territorial Victim Service Grant Programs. How does information get into this directory? If a State government allocates State funding to assist crime victims, and if an Administrator responded to OVC's survey, then this directory lists the award-making agency and the contact person. If information about your State is missing or incorrect, help OVC update the directory--complete the "new information" form at the back of the "Quick Look" section of the directory and return it to OVC.

With your help, future editions of OVC's National Resource Directory of Victim Assistance Funding Opportunities 2000 will provide even more comprehensive information about funding opportunities available to victim service providers.
