PUBLIC BUDGET DATABASE USER'S GUIDE

Budget of the United States Government for Fiscal Year 2009

This document describes six data files that contain an extract of the OMB budget database. These files can be used to reproduce many of the totals published in the Budget and examine unpublished details below the levels of aggregation published in the Budget. These data, however, have some limitation to their scope and usefulness.

The following sections describe the sources and limitations of the data. Content, format, and coding of the data files are discussed as well.

1. Data sources and limitations

a. Sources of data

Historical data for completed fiscal years are summarized from the financial records of the U.S. Government maintained by the Department of the Treasury. The totals are generally consistent with data published in the Monthly Treasury Statement, by the Financial Management Service of the Department of the Treasury. Differences between the Treasury publications and the Budget arise from a small number of reporting and classification corrections made subsequent to the Treasury publications. In the Analytical Perspectives volume, a chapter titled "Comparison of Actual to Estimated Totals" presents a reconciliation of the Budget and Treasury data for the most recently completed fiscal year.

In addition, these historical records are adjusted each year to conform to the agency and account structure of the current budget. For example, data originally reported in the 1966 budget by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, now appear under the Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Education, or the Social Security Administration, as appropriate. Lastly, the historical database has been updated for changes in the functional classification of accounts and the Budget Enforcement Act (BEA) categories, as well as subsequent corrections of reporting errors by agencies to the Treasury Department.

Budget estimates for the current fiscal year (2008) and the budget year (2009) are prepared by agencies, based on the definitions and guidance contained in OMB Circular A-11, "Preparation, Submission and Execution of the Budget." Budget totals for these years reflect the President's fiscal policy and economic assumptions, which are extensively described in the Budget documents.

The data files provide sufficient detail to produce (a) outlay totals by agency, subfunction, and Budget Enforcement Act category that are consistent with the totals presented in the 2009 Budget; (b) receipt totals by source, as shown in various published tables in the budget; and (c) the deficit (on-budget, off-budget, and unified budget basis).

b. Fiscal years

The data in these files are for fiscal years. Prior to 1977, the fiscal year began on July 1 and ended on June 30. For example, fiscal year 1965 began on July 1, 1964, and ended on June 30, 1965. Beginning with fiscal year 1977, the fiscal year begins on October 1 and ends on September 30. For example, fiscal year 2007 began on October 1, 2006, and ended on September 30, 2007. Fiscal year 1976 ended on June 30, 1976, and fiscal year 1977 began on October 1, 1976. The period July 1, 1976, to September 30, 1976, is called the “transition quarter” or TQ.

c. Units of measure

Data for budget authority, outlays, offsetting receipts, and governmental receipts are shown in thousands of dollars.

d. Limitations

These data files do not contain data by object classes, data for program and financing accounts, character class (other than grants to State and local governments), personnel summaries, or credit schedules. Account-level details are based on the proposed budget only and do not include current services estimates.

With few exceptions, these files present account-level details that are consistent with the account structure of the current budget. For governmental receipts and offsetting receipts, data prior to 1982 are aggregates in sufficient detail to produce the published tables, but are not “true” account level details. For budget authority, no data are available prior to 1976. For outlays, data for 1962-1981 tend to be account level details. Exceptions include the Legislative Branch and Department of Defense, which are available only at bureau-level detail in the earlier years.

Users of these data files should be careful to review and understand the effects that these limitations may have on their analysis of budget data and trends. For example, computation of compound annual growth rates of various receipt accounts in the budget could be severely affected by the discontinuities in account-level details prior to 1982.

e. Further information

Readers who are not already familiar with the federal budget should gain a familiarity with the concepts and organization of the budget before proceeding. The following documents may be helpful:

Analytical Perspectives, Budget of the United States Government, Fiscal Year 2009.

This document contains analyses that are designed to highlight specified program areas or provide other significant presentations of budget data that place the budget in perspective. It includes a discussion of the concepts underlying the organization of the budget and the presentation of budget data, economic assumptions underlying the budget estimates, federal receipts and collections, including user fees and tax expenditures, federal spending, the Budget Enforcement Act, and other topics. Two particularly useful chapters are “The Budget System and Concepts,” which contains a discussion of budget concepts, and “Federal Programs by Agency and Account,” which contains a listing of all appropriation and fund accounts in the budget.

OMB Circular A-11 provides instructions to agencies in preparing budget submissions, including details for entry into the budget database.

In addition, there is extensive literature on the federal budget that could be usefully consulted.

2. Data files and file formats

The account level data is available in spreadsheet and file import format.

a. Spreadsheet format

Files are provided in “XLS” and “CSV” formats. Virtually any spreadsheet program can read at least one of these common formats. In “CSV” format, data fields are separated by commas, text fields are contained inside double quote marks, and numerical fields do not have embedded commas. Each record is contained on a single line. This format is commonly used by database software. Separate files for receipts, outlays, and budget authority are available in each of these formats and are described in detail below.

b. File names, contents, and sequence

In all files, the records are sequenced by agency code, bureau code, account code, subfunction code, BEA category, Grant/Non-grant, and On- Off-budget field.

The files with the account level data are:

OUTLAYS.XLS	Outlays and offsetting receipts, 1962-2009, in spreadsheet format.
OUTLAYS.CSV	Outlays and offsetting receipts, 1962-2009, in file import format.
RECEIPTS.XLS	Governmental receipts, 1962-2009, in spreadsheet format.
RECEIPTS.CSV	Governmental receipts, 1962-2009, in file import format.
BUDAUTH.XLS	Budget Authority and offsetting receipts, 1976-2009, in spreadsheet format.

BUDAUTH.CSV Budget Authority and offsetting receipts, 1976-2009, in file import format.

Offsetting receipts are in the budget authority files as well as the outlay files. These amounts are needed to calculate net budget authority and net outlays.

c. Relational database considerations

If you plan to use these data in a relational database, you should designate the following fields as “primary” to uniquely identify each row of data: agency code, bureau code, account code, subfunction code, BEA category, Grant/Non-grant, and On- Off-budget field.

3. Categorization of budget data

The categorization of budget data differs slightly among receipts, outlays, and budget authority files.

a. Budget authority and outlay files

Account details are categorized using the following keys:

Agency--Agency codes generally correspond to the Cabinet department or independent agency with primary responsibility for the program. There are two major exceptions to this definition: (1) the Legislative Branch and the Judiciary are displayed as agencies, though they are separate branches of Government and (2) intragovernmental payments of interest to trust funds, payments of employer share of employee retirement contributions, and interest paid to the Outer Continental Shelf escrow account are classified as “undistributed offsetting receipts.” The agency coding used in the data files is consistent with the tables in the Budget documents that present budget authority and outlays by agency. These codes and titles differ from the “Treasury Agency” code, described below. In addition, some allowances are not distributed by agency or by function and are given a special agency code.

Bureau--Bureaus are major subdivisions within Cabinet departments that correspond to major organizational areas. Within Cabinet departments, these major organizational areas may be called “bureaus” (e.g., the Bureau of the Census within the Commerce Department or the Bureau of Labor Statistics within the Labor Department), “services” (e.g., the Internal Revenue Service within the Treasury Department or the Economic Research Service within the Agriculture Department); “offices” (e.g., Office of Postsecondary Education in the Education Department) or they may be broad budget categories (e.g., Procurement or Military Personnel in the Defense Department). Table 1 presents a listing of the agency and bureau categories used in the data files.

Account--These numbers are assigned by the Treasury Department and are used for budget presentation and financial management. In some instances, groups of small accounts (usually miscellaneous special and trust fund accounts) have been consolidated into single accounts.

Subfunction--Accounts are categorized by the subfunctions shown in Table 2. Accounts that include multiple subfunctions are subdivided into subfunction components.

Treasury Agency--These codes are defined in the Treasury Financial Manual, Supplement to Volume I, Federal Account Symbols and Titles, which contains the titles corresponding to these codes.

Budget Enforcement Act category--The Budget Enforcement Act (the “Act”) made distinctions between mandatory and discretionary accounts for certain provisions of the Act. This distinction is still used for scorekeeping and accounts are categorized accordingly. Initially, accounts were assigned categories based on the agreement shown in the Act’s statement of managers. Since that time, Administration and Congressional scorekeepers maintain the list, assigning new accounts and adjusting existing accounts when there is agreement. Where an account includes mandatory and discretionary activities, separate lines of data, appropriately coded, will be found in the data files. The possible values for this code are:

Discretionary--Discretionary spending is controlled through annual appropriations acts.

Mandatory--Mandatory spending generally operates under permanent authority. Statutes generally specify what must be paid and who is eligible to receive payments. Governmental receipt accounts are categorized as “governmental receipts” as described below.

Net Interest--Interest payments to and from the public and intragovernmental payments of interest, primarily to trust funds, are not included as either mandatory or discretionary spending.

Bioshield--Applies to budget authority for the biodefense counter measures account, for which advanced appropriations have been provided.

Readers wanting more information on this topic may refer to several chapters in the Analytical Perspectives volume.

Grant/Non-grant--Grants to state and local governments are separated from non-grant outlays, based on the definitions in OMB Circular A-11 for data section C.

b. Receipts files

Receipt account data are categorized as follows:

Source category--These are major categories of governmental receipts, such as individual income tax receipts or corporation income tax receipts. (See Table 3.)

Account--These are assigned by the Treasury Department and are used for budget presentation as well as financial management. In some instances, groups of small accounts (usually miscellaneous receipt accounts) have been consolidated into single accounts.

Treasury Agency--These codes are defined in the Treasury Financial Manual, Supplement to Volume I, Federal Account Symbols and Titles, which contains the titles corresponding to these codes.

4. Description of the fields in the outlay files

The following table describes the fields of data for the account-level files. For data files in spreadsheet format, the fields are separate spreadsheet columns. For files in file import format, commas, as previously described, separate the fields.
