As a federal employee, I feel that outsourcing does not save the taxpayer's money. All of the different functions our employees maintain cannot ever be accomplished quicker or cheaper with private companies. Some of our employees would need at least 10 company people to perform their delay tasks. I feel our system of position descriptions does a great injustice to our employees. No one ever cares or even looks at the diversity of skills each of us assume for the government.

I feel the administrators of the A-76 study should take into consideration these multitudes of tasks and be supportive of the dedication of government workers. By not contracting out, we could show for once that government people are already underpaid and have already been saving the taxpayers money.
