messages is done in the moderation center.

Unmoderated: Messages show on the board as soon as they're submitted. Messages stay on the board for a determined length of time, after which they are automatically deleted. (This is why a board won't get so big it explodes.) You can choose a message life of 1, 20, 30, 45, 60 or 90 days, or specify a custom message life between 1-100 days. Tip: High-traffic unmoderated boards should use a shorter message life so that they don't accumulate an excessive number of messages. If a board gets too big too long to load and you may experience technical problems.

Choose the default number of threads to display per index page. This number is overridable on the index page's display controls. This controls how fast your board will load.

Choose the location of the Page controls on your index page. Both: The controls appear at the end of the index page. Top: The controls appear only at the top of the index page. Bottom: The controls appear on the bottom of the index page before the new message area.

Choose a category for your message board. This is where your board is listed in InsideTheWeb's message board directory.

Enter some keywords (up to 70 characters) that pertain to what your page is about. This is to enhance your listing in directories and search engines.

Enter a description (up to 70 characters) of what your page is about. This is your listing in internet directories and search engines.

If you have a web page and you want to have a link to your message board, enter your web page URL and the text you want the link to read (for example "my page").

Choose to show or hide IP addresses for your message board.

These girl-friendly boards should be safe, fun and informative for those giving and getting advice. That's why they're monitored.

We do have a couple simple RULES:

- 1. Your message will NOT be posted if it includes profanity, insults, general chatting or advertising.
- 2. Include a clear title so everyone knows what your message is about. If you just put "Help," in the subject, your message will NOT be posted. So, use 2 or 3 words to let others know exactly what you need help with. For example, if you need answers on how to buy your first bra, don't just say "Help me!!!" Instead, say "Need advice on how to buy a bra." Trust us, you'll get more help!
- 3. Do NOT put "Please Post" on your message. It will NOT be posted if you do.
- 4. We're very specific about what belongs on each message board. It's really easy: If you need advice about boys, go to the "Boys" board. Messages will only be posted on the appropriate boards. Please read the suggested topics on each board.

Follow these guidelines and your message WILL be posted. It's that simple.

If you or a friend is dealing with a serious issue like abuse or severe depression, immediately refer to the RESOURCES we've provided.

There are certain topics girls are awesome at dishing out advice on—please use these boards to do so. Under each board we have recommended great topics of discussion.

Exhibit B-2

There are certain topics (like divorce, eating disorders and alcoholism) that girls are great at sharing advice on. But, these issues should also be addressed with a professional: A trusted parent, relative, psychologist, school counselor or a helpful ear at a hotline. Feel free to use the boards and one of the hotlines we've listed.

There are certain topics that belong to trained experts. There are professionals who can help you and your friends in serious situations—use them! See our RESOURCES below.

Oh, and if you keep up your end of the bargain, we promise the boards will be updated every three days (at least!) Any message board problems? Just e-mail us at boardmonitor@girlslife.com

Thanks a bunch!

The Girls' Life Message Boards: Girl Stuff Enter the Message Boards for Body, Beauty, of Other Girl Stuff

Welcome to the NEW Girl Stuff board!

Need advice on getting your first bra? Wondering about your period? Need some tips on asking mom if you can shave? Questions about cramps and mood swings? Visit the BODY board.

Need some new hairstyles for the week-end? Curious about how to apply mascara? Worried about a blemish break-out? Go to the BEAUTY board.

For all other girl-related topics go to the OTHER GIRL STUFF board. Freaked about pressure to start smoking? Think your self-esteem could use a lift? Confused about eating disorders? We think you guys can really help each other. For issues like anorexia, bulimia and depression we think you can give out some helpful advice. But, please use the RESOURCES below, too!

We will NOT post any messages that discuss pregnancy, abortion, sexual assault, STD's, or suicide because you need immediate help. You'll get the best support and advice from adult professionals. If you can't talk with a school counselor or parent, don't be scared to call on these listed resources for help. These numbers will not show up on your parent's phone bill, and 800 numbers are always free. Please get help when you need it!

Privacy Statement for InsideTheWeb

InsideTheWeb, Inc. has created this privacy statement in order to demonstrate our firm commitment to privacy. The following discloses our information gathering and dissemination practices for this site, InsideTheWeb.

InsideTheWeb's message board setup form requires users to give us their email address. The email address is used to contact the message board's moderator, only when necessary, concerning matters pertaining to the message board. Email addresses are not used in mass mailings from InsideTheWeb, nor are they sold to or shared with third parties.

Demographic and profile data; such as age, gender and income level; are also collected during message board setup. This information is shared with advertisers on an aggregate basis. No individual information is sold to or shared with any third party.

When posting to message boards, visitors may optionally include their email addresses. These email addresses are not used by InsideTheWeb for any purpose.

We use IP addresses to help diagnose problems with our server, and to administer our Web site. We do not link IP addresses to any personal information such as that provided when registering for a new message board. In rare instances IP addresses may be used to assist in deterring and/or preventing abusive or criminal activity on message boards.

Our site uses cookies to count and track site visits anonymously. A cookie is a small piece of data that many Web sites write to a file on your hard disk. A cookie can contain data like an ID number used to track what pages are visited. A cookie cannot by itself be used by a Web site to obtain personal information about the user or to read information from your computer other than that which has been voluntarily provided by you or is contained in cookies given by the same Web site.

We use an outside ad company to display ads on our site. These ads may contain cookies that may be used for purposes such as limiting the number of times an ad is seen by the same person, monitoring how many people have viewed certain ads, or other advertising-related purposes. While we use cookies in other parts of our Web site, cookies received with banner ads are controlled by our ad company, and we do not have access to information regarding these cookies.

If for some reason you would prefer not to accept cookies when visiting InsideTheWeb or other sites, most Web browsers have a feature that enables you to reject all cookies or to selectively accept only certain cookies.

Message boards that are inactive for a period of 45 days are automatically deleted from the system. Board moderators who wish to have their board (together with any contact or demographic information provided when registering for its setup) deleted before it auto-deletes may send email to support@InsideTheWeb.com, including the user name and password for the board that they wish to have deleted. Individuals requesting deletion of a board may be asked for information to confirm their identity for the purpose of ascertaining that they are the moderator of the board in question.

Message board moderators can change or modify any information previously provided during message board creation. To make changes, log in to the Message Board Control Center by
