Subject: Comments on the Draft Guidelines

Dear Lorraine Hunt,

I'm responding to information about the proposed or already in-use cost-benefit analysis guidelines which value youth higher than older citizens. I understand that such heartwrenching judgments may need to be made in some situations, but this reasoning should never be used to water-down anti-pollution requirements. Instead, for the health of all, we should be increasing the requirements. The short term savings for industries, is just that, short term. In the long run, all of our lives will be unnecessarily compromised by pollution. Cutting down on pollution now, saves lives and money in the future.

Please do not move forward with this kind of formula.

Sincerely, Cedar Barstow, 1485 Sumac Ave., Boulder, CO 80304
