GLASGOW – The Bureau of Land Management’s Glasgow Field Station is moving to a new location in the city. Beginning February 21, the office will be moving to the Post Office building at 605 Second Ave. South, Suite 206, in downtown Glasgow. Office telephone numbers will remain the same.

The change in office location became necessary when health and safety concerns caused closure of former office location in mid-December.

Twelve employees are normally stationed at the Glasgow office. Since mid-December, some have worked in temporary space in Glasgow and others from their homes.
