COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION

Privacy Act of 1974: System of Records

AGENCY: Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

ACTION: Notice of new systems of records.

SUMMARY: This notice adds three systems to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission's systems of records maintained under the Privacy Act: Freedom of Information Act requests, Privacy Act requests, and requests for confidential treatment. This notice informs the public of the existence and character of these systems and the routine uses which the Commission may make of the information contained in the systems.

DATES: Comments on the establishment of the new systems of records must be received no later than August 19, 1999. The new systems of records will be effective August 29, 1999 unless the Commission receives comments which would result in a contrary determination.

ADDRESSES: Comments should be addressed to Jean A. Webb, Secretary, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Three Lafayette Centre, 1155 21st Street, NW, Washington, DC 20581. Comments may also be sent via electronic mail to secretary@cftc.gov.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Stacy Dean Yochum, Office of the Executive Director, (202) 418-5157, or Eileen Donovan, Office of the Secretariat, (202) 418-5096, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Three Lafayette Centre, 1155 21st Street, NW, Washington, DC 20581.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: In accordance with the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a, and the Commission's implementing regulations, 17 CFR part 146, the Commission is publishing a description of three new systems of records. Each is described in detail below.

1. Freedom of Information Act Requests. The Commission established this system of records to manage the processing of requests received under the Freedom of Information Act. Because this system allows retrieval of information about an individual through his or her name, the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, requires a general notice of the existence of this system of records to the public.

The Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) provides individuals with a right of access to federal agency records, except to the extent that such records are protected from disclosure by one of nine exemptions. When the Commission receives a FOIA request, the request is assigned a control number for tracking purposes and a letter is sent to the requester acknowledging receipt of the request.

Search forms are sent to the Commission offices or divisions which maintain the records requested. Staff members in the responding office or division complete the form and return it to the Commission's FOIA Compliance Office with any responsive material located. When all completed search forms have been returned, a response letter is prepared and sent to the requester with any responsive material not exempt from disclosure.

A file folder is maintained for each request received and each folder contains the original request, copies of the acknowledgment and response letters, the search forms, any memoranda or notes related to the processing of the request, a copy of the bill sent to the requester if fees were incurred, and a copy or record of the material provided to the requester. The records are kept in locked file cabinets until destroyed in accordance with National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) General Records Schedule (GRS) 14. Once a request is closed, the records are used only to expedite the processing of appeals and subsequent requests for the same information and to prepare the Commission's annual report to the Department of Justice on FOIA activity for the fiscal year, without reference to the individual who made the request. Information pertaining to the processing and disposition of each request is compiled electronically in the FOIA Tracking System database and destroyed in accordance with GRS-14.

2. Privacy Act Requests. The Commission established this system of records to manage the processing of requests received under the Privacy Act. Because this system allows retrieval of information about an individual through his or her name, the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, requires a general notice of the existence of this system of records to the public.

The Privacy Act provides individuals with a right of access to records about themselves that are maintained in a federal agency's system of records. When the Commission receives a Privacy Act request, the request is assigned a control number for tracking purposes and a letter is sent to the requester acknowledging receipt of the request and asking for proof of the requester's identity.

Once the requester's identity is confirmed, search forms are sent to the Commission offices or divisions which maintain the records requested. Staff members in the responding office or division complete the form and return it to the Commission's FOIA Compliance Office with any responsive material located. When all completed search forms are returned, a response letter is prepared and sent to the requester with any responsive material not exempt from disclosure.

A file folder is maintained for each request received and each folder contains the original request, copies of the acknowledgement and response letters, the requester's proof of identity, the search forms, any memoranda or notes related to the processing of the request, a copy of the bill sent to the requester if fees were incurred, and a copy or record of the material provided to the requester. The records are kept in locked file cabinets until destroyed in accordance with GRS-14. Once a request is closed, the records are used only to process appeals and to prepare the Commission's biennial Privacy Act report to Congress, without reference to the individual who made the request. Information pertaining to the processing and disposition of each request is compiled electronically in the FOIA Tracking System database and destroyed in accordance with GRS-14.

3. Requests for Confidential Treatment. Individuals submitting information to the Commission may also submit a written request for confidential treatment of that information. The Commission maintains these requests for confidential treatment in a system of records so that if the Commission receives a FOIA request for the information, the submitter can be notified and given the opportunity to justify withholding the information from the requester. Because this system allows retrieval of information about an individual through his or her name, the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, requires a general notice of the existence of this system of records to the public.

A submitter seeking confidential treatment must request such treatment in writing and copies of the request must be sent to the Commission office or division receiving the information for which confidential treatment is sought and to the Commission's FOIA Compliance Office. The request is indexed and placed in a file folder in a locked cabinet until a FOIA request for the subject information is received.

If such a FOIA request is received, the submitter is notified and asked to submit a detailed written justification of the confidential treatment request.

Commission staff review the justification and determine whether confidential treatment should be granted or denied. If it is denied, the submitter may appeal that determination to the Commission's Office of the General Counsel. Information pertaining to the processing and disposition of each request is compiled electronically in the petitions database.

These new systems of records, as required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(r) of the Privacy Act, have been submitted to the Committee on Government Oversight and Reform of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the U.S. Senate, and the Office of Management and Budget, pursuant to Appendix I to OMB Circular A-130, "Federal Agency Responsibilities for Maintaining Records About Individuals," dated February 8, 1996.
