

of Caulerpa species to areas in U.S. waters where they are not native; (2) early detection and rapid response to non-native Caulerpa species in U.S. waters; (3) eradication of Caulerpa populations, in waters to which they are not native, where feasible; (4) providing long-term adaptive management and mitigating impacts of populations of Caulerpa species in U.S. waters where they are not native and where eradication is not feasible; (5) educating and informing the public, agencies and policymakers to advocate for preventing the introduction and spread of Caulerpa species; (6) identifying research needs and facilitating research to fill information gaps; and (7) reviewing and assessing progress and revising the management plan and continuing to develop information to meet national management plan goals.

Many Caulerpa species are native to the warm coastal waters of North, Central and South America. Both Florida and Hawaii have native species of Caulerpa in their coastal waters. However, three Caulerpa species are of particular concern due to their invasions of U.S. and foreign waters: C. taxifolia, C. brachypus, and C. racemosa.

Once introduced, invasive Caulerpa species can spread via fragmentation or other vectors. Caulerpa taxifolia (Mediterranean strain) was listed as a Federal noxious weed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture under the Plant Protection Act on March 16, 1999. This listing prohibits importation, entry, exportation, or movement in interstate commerce of this strain of C. taxifolia. To date, eradication efforts for C. taxifolia in California have cost over $3.7 million, and over $500,000 has been allocated to study C. brachypus in Florida.
