

River spring Chinook become available from other fish production programs, the Carson stock spring Chinook will be replaced with endangered stock.

Process to Date: In May 2004, the Colville Tribes submitted a Master Plan for the CJDHP as part of Step 1 of the Northwest Power and Conservation Council's Three-Step Review Process. The Master Plan included conceptual designs for hatchery facilities necessary for the production of summer/fall Chinook and spring Chinook. The Master Plan was reviewed by the Independent Science Review Panel as part of the Council's process.

The project was also available for public comment as part of the Council's process. In February 2005, the Northwest Power and Conservation Council approved the CJDHP Master Plan and directed the project to proceed with Step 2, which includes National Environmental Policy Act analysis.

Alternatives Proposed for Consideration: BPA is currently considering two alternatives for evaluation in the EIS: (1) The construction of a new summer/fall Chinook salmon and spring Chinook salmon hatchery facility at the base of Chief Joseph Dam along with a combination of new and existing acclimation facilities and adult collection facilities; and (2) the no-action alternative. Other alternatives may be identified through the scoping process. Mitigation measures will be considered, separate from features of the proposed action that could avoid or substantially reduce the environmental consequences of the proposed action.

Public Participation and Identification of Environmental Issues: The scoping process will help BPA ensure that a full range of alternatives and issues related to this proposal is addressed in the EIS, and also will identify significant or potentially significant impacts that may result from the proposed project. BPA has established a 45-day scoping period for this project during which affected landowners, concerned citizens, special interest groups, local governments, and any other interested parties are invited to comment on the scope of the proposed EIS. Public and internal scoping on this project will also include two public open house meetings. When completed, the Draft EIS will be circulated for review and comment and BPA will hold public meetings to receive comments on the Draft EIS. BPA and the cooperating agencies will consider and respond in the Final EIS to comments received on the Draft EIS. BPA's decision will be documented in a Record of Decision. The EIS will satisfy the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. When completed, the Draft EIS will be circulated for review and comment, and BPA will hold at least one public comment meeting for the Draft EIS. BPA will consider and respond in the Final EIS to comments received on the Draft EIS. BPA's subsequent decision will be documented in a Record of Decision. Maps and further information are available from BPA at the address above.
