ADDRESSES: Mary E. Downs, PhD, Research Officer, Institute of Museum

and Library Services, 1800 M. Street, NW., 9th Floor, Washington, DC, may be reached by telephone: 202-653-4682; fax: 202-653-8625; or e-mail: mdowns@imls.gov.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Institute of Museum and Library Services is an independent Federal grant-making agency authorized by the Museum and Library Services Act, 20 U.S.C. 9101, et seq. Section 210 of the Act supports IMLS' data collection and analysis role. The IMLS provides a variety of grant programs to assist the nation's museums and libraries in improving their operations and enhancing their services to the public. Museums and libraries of all sizes and types may receive support from IMLS programs.

Abstract: Congress has established the Institute of Museum and Library Services as the primary source of federal support for the nation's libraries and museums. Specifically through the Museum Services Act, as cited in the legislation (20 U.S.C. 9171), federal funds are directed to museums:

- (1) To encourage and support museums in carrying out their public service role of connecting the whole of society to the cultural, artistic, historical, natural, and scientific understandings that constitute our heritage;
- (2) to encourage and support museums in carrying out their educational role, as core providers of learning and in conjunction with schools, families, and communities
- (3) to encourage leadership, innovation, and applications of the most current technologies and practices to enhance museum services;
- (4) to assist, encourage, and support museums in carrying out their stewardship responsibilities to achieve the highest standards in conservation and care of the cultural, historic, natural, and scientific heritage of the United States to benefit future generations;
- (5) to assist, encourage, and support museums in achieving the highest standards of management and service to the public, and to ease the financial burden borne by museums as a result of their increasing use by the public; and
- (6) to support resource sharing and partnerships among libraries, schools, and other community organizations.

To achieve the purposes of the Museum Services Act the Institute of Museum and Library Services has established an array of discretionary grant programs administered at the national level. These programs have helped hundreds of museums around the country to better connect with the public they serve, enhance lifelong learning, and conserve tangible objects for future generations.

The Institute of Museum and Library Services, in response to its authority to conduct analyses on the impact and effectiveness of museum and library services (20 U.S.C. Chapter 72, 9108), proposes to assess the effectiveness of the systems that are currently in place to deliver state and federal public funds to museums. Effectiveness will be assessed using the purposes identified in the Museum Services Act.

Current Actions: This notice proposes clearance of the Museum Survey of Public Support. The 60-day notice for "Assessing the Effectiveness of Various Methods Used to Distribute Funds to U.S. Museums" was published in the Federal Register on June 6, 2007 (FR vol. 72, no. 108, pp. 31351-52.) One comment was received from a group of museum associations and included recommendations that the agency: Identify and study a diversity of approaches that states have used in providing financial and other resources to the museums in their state and to ensure that the study encompasses institutions of all budget sizes and disciplines; gather sound and current data about museums in the U.S., such as number of museums, the museum labor force, and number of visits annually to museums; and consider how the data it collects might help identify trends to inform decision-making by IMLS and the museum community.
