AGENCY: Bureau of Land Management, Interior.

ACTION: Temporary closure of selected public lands in California and Nevada during a research event known as the "Grand Challenge for Autonomous Ground Vehicles" to be held on Saturday, March 13, 2004.

SUMMARY: The Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) has official Bureau of Land Management authority to conduct a research event known as the "Grand Challenge for Autonomous Ground Vehicles" on California and Nevada lands in March, 2004. In an attempt to accelerate the development of autonomous vehicle technology, qualified, autonomous, unmanned vehicles will navigate along a specific route in compliance with parameters provided by DARPA; all vehicles will be under the control of DARPA during the event. The District Manager of the California Desert District (California) and the Field Manager of the Las Vegas Field Office (Nevada) of the Bureau of Land Management announce the temporary closure of selected public lands under their administration. This action involves two area closures and one route closure and is being taken to help ensure public safety and prevent unnecessary environmental degradation during the course of this event. At 4:30 a.m., Pacific Standard Time, on March 13, 2004, a final route of travel, taken from a total of 17 possible routes analyzed in the Environmental Assessment for the Grand Challenge will be announced to the general public and to 20 (twenty) teams which have constructed autonomous (robotic) vehicles for this event. This research event will involve twenty (20) fully autonomous ground vehicles which will be required to
