Available for licensing and commercial development is a radio-frequency coil design suitable for detecting time domain electron paramagnetic resonance responses from spin probes after pulsed excitation using radio-frequency irradiation (60–400 MHz). The coil is configured in an array of numerous surface coils of appropriate diameters connected in a parallel configuration with appropriate spacing between individual surface coils to form a volume type resonator. The design can accommodate and irradiate objects of varying dimensions, such as living objects, containing free radical spin probes and induce an EPR signal which can also be recovered by the resonator. Such a resonator has the capability of facilitating the enhanced dissipation of noise to thermal noise levels associated with the input power from the radio-frequency pulse, and recovering weak and rapidly decaying free induction decays. In addition, the lowering of the Q values by over-coupling, instead of resistively damping provides enhanced B1 fields thereby increasing the sensitivity of detection of the resonance signals after pulsed excitation.

Diagnostic Tool for Diagnosing Benign Versus Malignant Thyroid Lesions

Steven Libutti et al. (NCI)
U.S. Provisional Application No. 60/560,900 filed 09 Apr 2004 (DHHS Reference No. E-124-2004/0-US-01)
Licensing Contact: Mojdeh Bahar; 301/435-2950; baharm@mail.nih.gov.

The present invention is directed to the use of genes differentially expressed in benign and malignant thyroid lesions for the diagnosis and staging of thyroid cancer. The invention allows for the analysis of RNA isolated from tissues using gene expression profiling. The invention has identified a group of genes which can be used as a diagnostic predictor model for differentiating benign versus malignant thyroid tissue using microarray or quantitative RT-PCR.

Pharmacodynamic Assay

Eun Joo Chung and Jane Trepel (NCI)
U.S. Provisional Application No. 60/548,894 filed 27 Feb 2004 (DHHS Reference No. E-094-2004/0-US-01)
Licensing Contact: Mojdeh Bahar; 301/435-2950; baharm@mail.nih.gov.

This invention is a rapid, simple, sensitive flow cytometric assay for the pharmacodynamic analysis of histone deacetylase inhibitors in clinical development as novel anti-cancer agents. The assay can be performed on 50 microliters of whole blood, the equivalent of a finger stick. The assay can quantify simultaneously the effects of multiple classes of drug and thus be used for pharmacodynamic analysis of HDAC inhibitors in combination therapy.

This invention is a small molecule that has potential as a cancer therapeutic, termed SJG-136. It is a dimeric synthetic analog of the pyrrolobenzodiazepine family of anti-tumor antibiotics derived from various Streptomyces species. SJG-136 has shown significant cytotoxicity and antitumor activity in vitro and in vivo. The particular compositions disclosed in the present application represent new structures that were not claimed previously.
