This account supports U.S. foreign policy objectives by providing economic assistance to allies and countries in transition to democracy, supporting the Middle East peace process, and financing economic stabilization programs, frequently in a multi-donor context. Key objectives include:

- (1) Supporting strategically significant friends and allies through assistance designed to increase the role of the private sector in the economy, reduce government controls over markets, enhance job creation, and improve economic growth.
- (2) Developing and strengthening institutions necessary for sustainable democracy. Typical areas of assistance include technical assistance to administer and monitor elections, capacity-building for non-governmental organizations, judicial training, and women's participation in politics. Assistance is also provided to support the transformation of the public sector to encourage democratic development, including training to improve public administration, promote decentralization, strengthen local governments, parliaments, independent media and non-governmental organizations.
- (3) Strengthening the capacity to manage the human dimension of the transition to democracy and a market economy, and to help sustain the neediest sectors of the population during the transition period.

Haiti.—The Administration is requesting a total of $140,000,000 out of the total ESF appropriation for Haiti. Haiti is at a pivotal juncture in its efforts to make the transformation to a democratic form of government and a free market economy. The Administration believes these additional resources for Haiti will be especially beneficial to show continued support for Haiti following the scheduled conclusion of the United Nation's peacekeeping operations in Haiti at the end of November 1998.

Holocaust Victims Relief.—This is a contribution toward the three-year U.S. Government donation (not to exceed $25 million) for a multilateral program of financial relief to certain victims of Nazi persecution during World War II. Grants from the fund will be provided through approved non-governmental organizations with established administrative and organizational infrastructure to ensure the contributions are utilized only for the relief of living victims, who have to date received little or no relief and currently live below the poverty line in their country of residence.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank) finances development projects in less developed countries. By applying banking principles to the achievement of development goals, it promotes increased economic productivity and helps developing economies meet more of the basic needs of their people.

The IBRD also plays a vital role in providing policy advice to borrowing countries; assisting in donor coordination and promoting co-financing.

The IBRD made new commitments of $14.5 billion during its 1997 fiscal year; IBRD gross disbursements were $14.0 billion. Since its establishment in 1945, the IBRD has made loans totalling $295 billion—$147 for every $1 of U.S. paid in capital.

The Global Environment Facility (GEF) provides technical assistance and partial funding for developing country investments designed to provide global environmental benefits by reducing international water pollution, and ozone depletion, and by promoting biodiversity and energy conservation. With its highly specific focus on global environmental issueswhere both costs and benefits are shared across international borders-the GEF occupies a unique and increasingly important niche in the international financial institution system. Its basic mission is to support innovative and cost-effective pilot investments whose design and environmental benefits can be duplicated (and financed) elsewhere. Under strong U.S. leadership, flowing in part from our position as the largest donor on the GEF's governing Council, the GEF has been making substantial progress in leveraging its limited resources. The World Bank, the UN Development Program, the UN Environment Program and, increasingly, private investors, provide substantial cofinancing for GEF projects. Since its inception in 1994, total GEF commitments amount to about $1.7 billion, triggering additional cofinancing of over $4 billion.

The initial U.S. commitment to the GEF in 1995 amounted to $430 million, of which we have delivered $227.5 million. As of the end of 1998, U.S. arrears will amount to $192.5 million. The Administration is negotiating a GEF-2 replenishment and intends to limit its contributions to GEF-1 levels, and will seek Congressional authorization to contribute $430 million to GEF over four years. The 1999 request of $300 million would clear all arrears to GEF-1 and cover one year of annual commitments to the GEF's second funding cycle.

The International Development Association (IDA), a member of the World Bank Group, provides development financing on highly concessional terms to the world's poorest and least creditworthy nations. These countries are primarily in Sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia, but also in Latin America, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union. IDA places special emphasis on poverty alleviation, environmental protection, and economic reform and growth. The IDA is the largest source of multilateral lending that is extended on concessional terms to developing countries. Projects have to meet the same economic, financial, and environmental standards as other World Bank projects.

During its fiscal year 1997, IDA made new commitments of $4.6 billion, and IDA's gross disbursements were $6.0 billion. Since its establishment, IDA has made commitments totalling $101.6 billion (as of June 30, 1997).

The Tenth Replenishment of IDA provides donor country resources of about $18 billion. The United States pledged $3.75 billion (20.86 percent share of all donor contributions) to the replenishment. The eleventh replenishment of IDA will provide total resources for new loan commitments of about $22 billion over the 1997–1999 period. The United States elected not to participate in 1997, the first year of the three-year replenishment. The United States pledged $1.6 billion for the last two years of the replenishment (15 percent of total donor contributions). The 1999 request is $800 million for the final United States contribution to the eleventh replenishment.

The International Finance Corporation (IFC), a member of the World Bank Group, was established in 1956 to further economic development by encouraging the growth of private enterprise in developing countries. The IFC provides technical assistance, and mobilizes loans and equity investments for promising ventures. The IFC is now playing an important role in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe's transition to free markets and private enterprise, due to the IFC's special expertise in foreign investment, capital markets development, and privatization. The U.S. completed its contributions to the IFC in 1997. The IFC is not expected to require any additional capital in the foreseeable future.

During World Bank FY 1997 the Corporation approved 246 new investments totalling $6.7 billion, and net investments for the IFC's own account were $3.3 billion. IFC's committed loan and equity portfolio (for its own account) was $10.5 billion as of June 30, 1997.

The Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency (MIGA) is an international development institution affiliated with the World Bank Group. MIGA is designed to encourage the flow of foreign private investment to and among developing countries by: (1) issuing guarantees against noncommercial risks and (2) carrying out a wide range of investment promotion activities.

Negotiations are now underway for MIGA's first General Capital Increase (GCI), and on related policy measures. The first U.S. contribution will not be requested before the year 2000

During World Bank FY 1997, the MIGA issued 70 guarantees, with a maximum contingent liability of $614 million, to facilitate aggregate direct investment of $4.7 billion. There are no claims pending against MIGA.

The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes sustainable economic growth and development, poverty reduction, private sector development, and good governance in Latin America and the Caribbean through loans and technical assistance. Since its inception in 1960, the Bank has lent over $90 billion.

The Bank lends money through: (1) the Ordinary Capital window that lends at market-based rates; and, (2) the Fund for Special Operations (FSO), which makes loans on concessional terms to the region's poorest nations.

The 1999 request includes: (1) budget authority of $25.6 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $1,503.7 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions for payments on the U.S. contribution to the IDB's eighth general capital increase; and, (2) budget authority of $21.2 million for the final U.S. payment to the Eighth Replenishment of the FSO.

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) fosters broad-based sustainable economic development, poverty alleviation, and cooperation in the Asia/Pacific region. The Bank lends at market-based rates through its ordinary capital window and on highly concessional terms to the region's poorer nations through the Asian Development Fund (ADF).

The United States successfully negotiated a 41 percent reduction in U.S. contributions to the seventh replenishment of the Asian Fund.

In 1997, the Bank lent $7.7 billion of its ordinary capital resources and extended loans and grants of $1.6 billion from its ADF resources for development projects. Since its founding in 1966, the ADB has loaned over $46.9 billion, and the ADF has loaned over $19.1 billion. The Bank has made cumulative equity investments of $428 million.

The 1999 request includes: (1) budget authority of $13.2 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $647.9 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions for the fourth of six installments on the U.S. subscription to the ADB's fourth general capital increase; and, (2) $250 million in budget authority to participate in the sixth replenishment of ADF resources, and to partially clear outstanding unmet commitments on the U.S. share of the $4.2 billion fifth replenishment of ADF resources.

The African Development Bank (AFDB) lends at market-based rates for economic development in countries on the African continent. The United States joined the AFDB in 1983 when membership was open to non-regional countries. In 1997, the AFDB financed 21 new projects worth $798 million. Since its inception in 1963, the AFDB has financed 746 projects worth over $20.6 billion.

The African Development Fund (AFDF), the concessional lending affiliate of the African Development Bank, makes loans to the poorest African nations. The AFDF-7 replenishment negotiations, which were concluded in May 1996, brought about far-reaching and comprehensive restructuring and institutional reforms. In 1997, the AFDF loaned $807 million for 84 projects. By the end of 1997 and since its inception in 1974, cumulative AFDF lending totaled $11.4 billion for 1,267 development projects.

The 1999 request includes $155 million in budget authority: $66.7 million for the third installment plus $88.3 million in arrears for the first two installments on the U.S. share of the seventh replenishment of AFDF resources.

The European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) supports market-oriented economic reform and democratic pluralism through predominately private sector lending and investments in the nations of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. Over three-quarters of projects approved in 1996 were in the private sector. The United States and other shareholders signed the articles of agreement of the EBRD on May 29, 1990, and the Bank officially began operating on April 15, 1991.

In April 1996, shareholders approved a doubling of EBRD's capital base from ECU 10 billion to ECU 20 billion (approximately $24 billion). The capital increase went into effect in April 1997, with the U.S. subscribing to its shares on December 19, 1997. Under the capital increase, paid-in contributions constitute 22.5 percent of total capital, with the remainder callable. The annual payment for the U.S.'s ten percent share dropped from $70 million under the initial subscription to $35.8 million under the capital increase. At the end of 1996, the EBRD had approved over 450 loans and investments totalling $12.4 billion.

The 1999 request consists of $35.8 million in budget authority for paid-in capital subscriptions and $123.2 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions for the second of eight installments on the U.S. subscription to the general capital increase.

The North American Development Bank (NADBank) provides $2–3 billion in financing for high priority environmental infrastructure projects in the border region and, more broadly within the United States for NAFTA-related community adjustment and investment. The Bank has begun its environmental lending and guarantee operations in both the United States and Mexico. NADBank operations provide significant direct benefits to U.S. citizens, particularly those in the border states. The NADBank's capital shares ($450 million in paid-in and $2.55 billion in callable capital) were contributed equally by the United States and Mexico over a four-year period. The final U.S. installment was appropriated in 1998.

The NADBank will finance environmental infrastructure projects that have been certified by the U.S.-Mexican Border Environment Cooperation Commission (BECC), an institution designed to assist border states and local communities in coordinating border clean-up. Communities on both sides of the border have long been plagued by problems such as raw sewage dumped in boundary waters, unsafe drinking water, and inadequate municipal waste disposal. Based on its paidin and callable capital, the NADBank will be able to provide partial guarantees of private sector financing and borrow in capital markets to provide loans to help finance the projects certified by the BECC. The NADBank has begun its environmental lending operations and approved financing for four projects in 1997.

In addition, 10 percent of the U.S. and Mexican shares of NADBank will be available for NAFTA-related community adjustment and investment in both countries, which need not be in the border region. In 1999, the Administration proposes that $37 million be appropriated for the Community Adjustment and Investment Program (CAIP). This appropriation is sought in the Treasury chapter as a domestic assistance program. The Secretary of Treasury would have the authority to transfer CAIP funds to the NADBank or other Federal agencies to assist in carrying out the program. The CAIP offers financing directly and through existing federal credit programs, such as those run by the Small Business Administration, to both new and existing businesses within communities that suffered job losses as a result of changing trade patterns with Canada and Mexico. The program launched its lending operations during 1997. An Advisory Committee, which includes low income community representatives and non-governmental organizations, helps ensure broad public participation in the community adjustment window of the NADBank.

The Multilateral Investment Fund (MIF) is a component of the Enterprise for the Americas Initiative, a program to unlock the potential for domestic and foreign investment and encourage market-based capital flows. The MIF, administered by the Inter-American Development Bank, is a multilateral fund which provides grants and loans to support private-sector development and investment sector reforms. Special consideration is given to reforms that encourage private foreign direct investment and promote privatization. Grants and loans are used for technical assistance to identify and resolve investment constraints, for investment in human capital, and for business infrastructure and development.

The 1999 request for the MIF is $50 million for partial payment of outstanding U.S. commitments to the U.S. share of MIF resources.

This account will provide technical assistance to other countries in support of the responsibilities of the U.S. Treasury Department to formulate, conduct and coordinate the international financial policies of the United States. In addition to overseeing U.S. interests in the work of international financial institutions, including the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the various regional development banks, the Treasury Department frequently has the lead responsibility for implementing fiscal and financial policy aspects of U.S. foreign policy toward individual countries. Technical assistance provided through this account will facilitate key short- and medium-term reforms in the policy and management areas of budget, tax, government debt, financial institutions and financial crimes enforcement.

Using funding provided under the SEED and Freedom Support Acts, U.S. Treasury Department advisors have provided policy and management advice in the areas described above to countries in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union in their transition to market economies and democratic fiscal structures. Beginning in 1997, advisors have also provided assistance, using funding from USAID Development Assistance and the Economic Support Fund, to the governments of South Africa and Haiti. The flexibility provided by direct funding will permit the Department to be responsive when governments make decisions to implement key fiscal and financial reforms, and allow it to act quickly to help these governments strengthen governmental fiscal and financial institutions during crucial transition periods toward market-oriented economies.

The proposed $5 million appropriation will fully fund approximately 10 resident advisors, including selected administrative costs and intermittent expert visits in support of the advisors. This appropriation will permit the continuation of the program in Haiti, expansion of the program in southern Africa, and implementation of programs in other emerging market economies. The Treasury Department will closely coordinate with international financial institutions and with USAID, the Department of State and other relevant U.S.

Paris Club Debt Reduction. For the poorest countries, debt reduction provides an incentive to implement macroeconomic and structural reforms necessary to improve economic performance and creditworthiness. The combination of economic reform and debt reduction contribute to growth and sustained development, which can mean greater opportunities for U.S. commercial interests in these countries. For the poorest and most heavily indebted countries, debt reduction will be undertaken in concert with the Paris Club of creditor nations, including extraordinary debt reduction under the Heavily-Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) debt initiative. The Administration anticipates that $37 million in appropriations will fund debt reduction under Naples and HIPC terms for qualifying countries. This request level, combined with funds previously appropriated, will allow the U.S. in 1998-99 to provide approximately $1.5 billion in face value debt reduction for the poorest countries, potentially including Cameroon, Cote d'Ivoire, Mozambique, Tanzania, Uganda, Bolivia, and Nicaragua. For agreements implemented in the remainder of FY 1998 and subsequently, the Administration intends to obligate funds for debt reduction at the date of the signing of a bilateral framework agreement, to be concluded at the time of the signing of the Paris Club Agreed Minute, rather than 30 days after the conclusion of a formal U.S. bilateral debt agreement, as is currently the practice. This change of date for budget cost obligations is appropriate because the Paris Club Agreed Minute is the date when the U.S. Government commits politically to reducing debt for a particular country.

Concessional Debt Reduction for Africa. The President announced the "Partnership for Growth and Opportunity in Africa" on June 17, 1997. The Africa Initiative will target countries undertaking the boldest economic reforms to receive the maximum benefits from the program. Such reforms will encompass governance issues, macroeconomic policy, trade and investment policy, and investment in people. The best way the United States can support Africa is by making trade and investment—not just aid—the centerpiece of our economic relations. To support African economic reform efforts, the Administration, at the discretion of the President, will offer to provide 100% debt reduction of concessional debt owed to the United States. This 100% debt reduction program will complement Administration efforts to maximize debt relief for the most heavily indebted poor countries under the HIPC debt initiative. The Administration anticipates that $35 million in appropriations will fund 100% debt reduction for approximately $325 million in the face value of concessional debts for qualifying African countries.

Funds allocated within the debt restructuring account are fungible between these two programs to allow sufficient flexibility in effecting international commitments. The resulting cash flows from debt reduction are recorded in the debt reduction financing and liquidating accounts for the Export-Import Bank, foreign military loans, the Department of Agriculture's G.S.M. (Honduras only) and P.L. 480 programs, and the Agency for International Development.

Debt Buyback/Swap Program. For Latin America and the Caribbean, the Administration proposes that debt reduction be effected at zero cost through buybacks and swaps of eligible concessional debt, linked to commitment of local currency payments to support environment or child survival projects. The Administration will be seeking new authority for nocost buybacks and swaps of P.L. 480 concessional debt and the approval of the Appropriations Committee for this program.

Sustainable Development Assistance Program.—The Sustainable Development Assistance account funds sustainable development assistance activities that are not related to child survival, disease prevention and basic education. While these latter activities are funded in the Child Survival and Disease Programs account, the Sustainable Development Assistance account funds programs in the areas of economic growth, democracy, family planning and global environment.

However, activities funded through both accounts are key components of AID's principle mission of supporting the people of developing and transitional countries in their efforts to achieve sustainable economic and social progress. These activities support five key USAID strategic goals:

(1) Encouraging broad-based economic growth and agricultural development, with the objectives of expanding and strengthening critical private markets, achieving enhanced agricultural development and food security, and, expanding access to economic opportunity for the rural and urban poor.

(2) Strengthening democracy and good governance, with the objectives of strengthening the rule of law and respect for human rights of both men and women, encouraging credible and competitive political processes, promoting the development of a politically active civil society, and encouraging more transparent and accountable government institutions.

(3) Building human capacity through education and training, with the objectives of expanding access to quality basic education, especially for girls and women, and, increasing the contributions of institutions of higher education to sustainable development.

(4) Stabilizing the world population and protecting human health, with the objectives of reducing unintended pregnancies, improving infant and child health and nutrition and reducing infant and child mortality, reducing deaths, nutrition insecurity and adverse health outcomes to women as a result of pregnancy and child birth, reducing HIV transmission and the impact of the HIV/AIDS pandemic in developing countries, and, reducing the threat of infectious diseases of major public health importance.

(5) Protecting the world's environment, with the objectives of preparing national environmental management strategies, improving conservation of biologically significant habitats, reducing the rate of growth of net emissions of greenhouse gases, increasing the access of urban populations to adequate environmental services, conserving energy through increased efficiency and reliance on renewable sources, and reducing the loss of forest area.

The 1999 Request for Sustainable Development Assistance includes funding for two Presidential Initiatives:

(1) African Trade and Investment which includes a $30 million request for USAID to provide assistance to countries that are attempting to implement critical economic policy reforms. The purpose of this assistance is to expand the number of African countries that can attract U.S. and other foreign trade and investment. By doing so, these countries should be able to increase economic growth and employment and reduce poverty. The initiative will provide a combination of program and technical assistance to African nations that have demonstrated a clear commitment to economic reform to help them design and implement trade and investment-related legal and institutional reforms. By increasing the access of these countries to trade and investment, this initiative will support the broader Africa initiative that was proposed by the President and has been supported by the Congress.

(2) Summit of the Americas which includes a $20 million request for USAID to provide assistance in support of the key summit goals of increased access to basic education, reduced levels of poverty and achievement of hemispheric free trade. Specific AID activities to be funded will include expansion of basic education in remote areas, support for increased access to micro-finance, and technical assistance to improve legal and institutional reforms necessary to reduce barriers to trade and investment.

This account provides funds to promote country-specific strategies that build on common, region-wide strategic goals, including economic restructuring, democratic transition, and social stabilization. Authorized Support for Eastern European Democracy (SEED) programs concentrate on: (a) the development of market economies and a strong private sector; (b) the development and strengthening of institutions necessary for sustainable democracy; and, (c) the improvement of the basic quality of life in selected areas. This interagency program is coordinated out of the State Department's Bureau of European and Canadian Affairs.

The single largest SEED program funded in this account is Bosnia, which remains a major Administration priority. Reconstruction needs and support for local police continue to be significant in this country as it moves towards stability and normalcy. The request for 1999 also includes $12.5 million for the first of four tranches to capitalize a $100 million trust fund, on a 50-50 basis, in a public-private partnership with a number of U.S. foundations. This trust is designed to help sustain support for democracy and economic reform through support for non-governmental organizations in countries where U.S. direct assistance has been phased out.

This account provides funds for a program of assistance to the independent states that emerged from the former Soviet Union. These programs for the New Independent States (NIS) have been envisioned since the outset as short-term in nature. They are designed to jump-start the process of political and economic transition to market democracies, and to help address major socioeconomic dislocations where they occur during these transitions. Funds will support economic restructuring through helping to create conditions that encourage: trade and investment and private sector growth; improved government fiscal policy, revenue collection, and financial management; a market-oriented financial sector; and a more efficient energy sector and a cleaner environment. Funds will support democratic transitions through promoting citizen participation, establishing the rule of law, and strengthening local governments.

Program resources requested in 1999 will be increasingly focused on the Partnership for Freedom (PFF) approach begun in 1998. This approach is designed to achieve the mutual economic and political goals of the United States and countries in the region. Building on traditional government-togovernment technical assistance and tailoring the overall U.S. assistance program to unique NIS circumstances, the PFF supports broader economic and social ties between the United States and the NIS. It includes the development and expansion of sustainable partnerships, professional linkages, and citizen exchanges. Programs will be increasingly aimed at enhancing local public and private institutional capacity as part of the comprehensive strategy to expand trade and investment, develop and strengthen small and medium enterprises, mobilize capital, reduce crime and corruption, and build viable civil societies.

The goal of the Sahel Regional Program was to increase food security and ecological balance in Sahel, West Africa. Within that goal, the program promoted trade and investment in the West Africa Region, encouraged regional dialogue, and provided decision-makers with ready access to relevant information on development issues.

Since 1988 these activities have been funded from the Development Fund for Africa and Development Assistance accounts.

The International Disaster Assistance (IDA) account provides funds for two separate Offices. The Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance (OFDA) manages relief, rehabilitation, and reconstruction assistance to foreign countries struck by natural and man-made disasters and supports disaster prevention, mitigation and preparedness. OFDA's program has been placing increasing emphasis on complex emergencies; a product of ethnic and national tensions leading to civil strife and the displacement of large numbers of people. The $160 million request for OFDA for 1999 will be used to provide temporary shelter, blankets, supplementary food, potable water, medical supplies and agricultural rehabilitation aid, including seeds and hand tools.

The Office of Transition Initiatives (OTI) promotes the successful transition of countries from the initial crisis stage of a complex emergency (frequently addressed by OFDA) to the path of sustainable development. OTI seeks to promote peace and stability which can include: support for demobilization and re-integration of ex-combatants into civil society; landmine awareness; community self-help projects that reduce tension and promote democratic processes; and conflict resolution. The 1999 request for OTI includes an increase of $15 million to $45 million. Since its inception in 1994, OTI has established a successful track record and requires additional funding to respond to the significant number of opportunities for peaceful transitions from complex emergencies.

This revolving fund finances the acquisition and rehabilitation of U.S. Government-owned excess property, at minimal cost, for purchase by friendly countries and eligible organizations, for use in conjunction with economic development programs. Excess property, most of it obtained from the Department of Defense, includes heavy construction equipment, vehicles, heavy machinery, electrical generating equipment, and medical equipment and supplies. The program is self-financed from service fees and reimbursements by equipment purchasers ultimately funded from development assistance appropriations to the Agency for International Development.

The Ukraine Export Credit Guarantee Program, which terminated in 1997, insured U.S. exporters against the risk of non-payment for their goods on the part of Ukrainian entities. The program had multiple objectives, including: (a) helping to feed the needy by pump-priming the Ukrainian agricultural sector; (b) paving the way for the resumption of U.S. Eximbank activity within the country; and, (c) encouraging the requisite shift in orientation of the Ukrainian economy from statist to private-sector led.

The Urban and Environmental Credit Program (formerly the Housing Guaranty Program) provides long-term financing to developing countries for innovative urban investment programs in areas such as shelter, potable water, wastewater treatment, solid waste disposal, environmental improvement of poor urban neighborhoods, and energy distribution. These investments focus on improving the quality of life for the urban poor through the development of infrastructure and the encouragement of reforms in urban policy. The Urban and Environmental Credit Program operates by guaranteeing loans from U.S. private investors to borrowers in developing countries who are implementing urban programs which have been approved by U.S.A.I.D.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for the Urban and Environmental Credit Program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Micro and Small Enterprise Development Program account supports private sector activities in developing countries by providing direct loans and loan guarantees to support local micro and small enterprises.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on present value basis. Administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The MSED program works with financial institutions to increase the flow of credit to small businesses in developing nations worldwide; poverty reduction requires thriving micro and small businesses whose success depends, in turn, on the ability to secure credit. The MSED program: (a) stimulates the growth and expansion of private sector activity by enhancing access to credit for micro and small businesses; (b) develops innovative financing mechanisms that address imperfec-tions in the credit market that make it difficult for small enterprises to get credit; and, (c) strengthens the capacity of indigenous financial institutions to engage in micro and small business lending through targeted training programs.

The primary tool is the Loan Portfolio Guaranty (LPG) program which provides loan guarantees. The MSED program also uses direct loans and guarantees to provide capital for private voluntary organizations (PVOs) and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) engaged in microenterprise lending activities and to create sustainable relationships between these PVOs/NGOs and formal financial institutions. Guarantees are combined with training and technical assistance to improve the capacity of banks to assess small and micro business credits and to assist borrowers to present credible proposals to lending institutions.

The Development Credit Authority (DCA) will permit USAID to utilize direct loans and loan guarantees that have market-based rates and other market-based terms and conditions to achieve sustainable development objectives where these objectives can be achieved more effectively through the use of credit mechanisms, as opposed to through grants or other financing mechanisms. The DCA will only be used in cases where credit risks can be accurately assessed, where the specific sovereign or non-sovereign developing country obligor can responsibly undertake the credit servicing obligation, and where the use of USAID credit mechanisms will assist in the development of private sector mechanisms that can sustain the development impact. Therefore, while DCA will offer USAID an additional financing mechanism, it will not alter the Agency's programmatic priorities. The Agency will continue to provide the majority of its assistance on a grant basis and will utilize the DCA to finance sovereign and nonsovereign development projects that are both developmentally sound and creditworthy.

The DCA is requested as a permitted transfer from funds appropriated to carry out Part I of the Foreign Assistance Act so that the actual amount of funds transferred for the subsidy cost of DCA credits can be commensurate with USAID's credit management capabilities. USAID has undertaken an ambitious Credit Management Improvement Action Plan and is implementing this plan with the cooperation of the Office of Management and Budget. The Agency is currently putting a number of far-reaching credit management reforms into effect and expects to have capabilities in place by the end of 1998 that will allow the transfer of the entire $15 million requested for the DCA.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year) as well as for the administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

Its primary credit program is investment financing through loans and guaranteed loans.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, the Program Account records the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Peace Corps' operating expenses will provide direct and indirect support for an average of 6,000 Americans engaged in voluntary services in 84 countries worldwide in 1998. The Volunteers help fill the trained manpower needs of developing countries and encourage self-sustaining development of skilled manpower. The Peace Corps promotes mutual understanding between the peoples of the developing world and the United States and focuses the attention of the American people on the benefits of volunteerism. Peace Corps Volunteers work primarily in the areas of agriculture, education, economic development, health, and environment.

Millennium Initiative.—This presidential initiative will support the Peace Corps' efforts to place a total of 5,712 new trainees in the field in 1999 and will put the Peace Corps on a path to a volunteer corps of 10,000 in the new century. The World Wise Schools Program, which connects Peace Corps volunteers with American teachers and students to promote international understanding, will be expanded to 10,000 teachers. The Initiative also includes an increase of 100 in the number of Crisis Corps volunteers, who provide assistance to the international relief community during humanitarian crises and natural disasters.

Africa Region.—The Africa Region will support 1,272 new trainees and an average of 2,227 Volunteers during 1998. These Volunteers and trainees will work in 28 sub-Saharan countries.

Europe, Mediterranean, and Asia Region.—In 1998 an average of 1,815 volunteers will work in 26 countries in Eastern and Central Europe, the former Soviet Union, North Africa, and Asia. The region will support 1,140 new trainees.

Inter-America and Pacific Region.—An average of 1,947 volunteers will work in 30 countries in the Caribbean, Central America, South America, and the Pacific. This office will also fund 1,166 new trainees in 1998.

Other Volunteer Support.—These activities fund a wide range of volunteer- and program-related costs, including medical support for Volunteers, recruitment and placement, technical resources, domestic programs, policy and direction, and related administration and oversight.

tives in Latin America and the Caribbean with a direct impact on the lives and the capacity for self reliance of people at the lowest economic levels. In addition to appropriations and private gifts, the Foundation is funded by annual transfers from the Social Progress Trust Fund administered by the Inter-American Development Bank. In 1999, the IAF will continue its new strategic programming approach which emphasizes: (1) building partnerships among grassroots organizations, Non-Governmental Organizations, local governments, and private enterprises to foster social and economic development at the local level; and, (2) expanding access to private business sector resources for grassroots development. The IAF will continue to refine its system of measuring the results of its grants for the purposes of identifying and disseminating best practices and lessons for the benefit of the major development funders, new private sector contributors and development practitioners. Using information derived from the results system that is based on the grassroots development framework from a set of learning practices focused on grants, the Foundation will systematically incorporate lessons learned back into the Foundation's strategic planning and grant decision-making processes. It will also disseminate the results assessment system and development information to partner organizations in the region, to other donors and enterprises supporting development activities, and to grassroots practitioners.

Development Grants.—This activity includes the cost of all grants made directly to grassroots membership and service organizations to carry out development projects in Latin America and the Caribbean. In 1999, the Foundation plans to award approximately 100 grants and 20 grant supplements in 17 countries.

Development Research and Evaluation.—This activity funds grants and fellowships for grassroots development research and for the evaluation of the Foundation's projects.

In-country Support.—Resources associated with this activity are used by local development professionals in Latin America and the Caribbean to provide grantees with technical assistance and training when necessary to conduct and assess the results of their projects.

Program Management and Operation.—This activity includes Foundation expenses for salaries and benefits, travel, rent, service contracts, and other support costs.

The African Development Foundation (ADF), a public corporation, is a unique agency of the U.S. Government that supports community-based, self-help initiatives to alleviate poverty and to promote sustainable development in Africa. Through its grant program, ADF has pioneered participatory development in Africa. Foundation grants are made directly to private grassroots African groups and are premised on self-help to foster self-reliance through the promotion of African leadership and ownership of the development process.

The Foundation has recently completed a 15-month comprehensive, reengineering process in which ADF has: (a) developed new strategic goals and objectives, at the corporate level and for all country programs, to focus and concentrate financial resources for greater impact; (b) completed an organizational restructuring to focus more human resources on field operations; (c) streamlined all programming and support systems to increase operational efficiency and effectiveness; and (d) implemented a plan designed to increase the decision making, program monitoring and evaluation capacity of field staff. In addition, ADF has installed a new grants accounting system and procured computer hardware and software to permit Internet access and connectivity with field staff. Finally, the Foundation is pursuing strategic partnerships with the private sector and other donors to leverage resources and to develop new modes of assistance for Africa.

In 1999, ADF will provide assistance to fifteen countries in Africa, but resources will be concentrated in eight: Benin, Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Senegal, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zimbabwe. This budget request will fund the Foundation's operating costs and more than 50 small grants to African non-governmental organizations, community-based groups and researchers, in pursuit of ADF's three strategic goals. Program Components:

(1) Advance sustainable development and empowerment of the poor in Africa.—ADF will promote micro and small enterprise development which will generate employment and enhance income. ADF will also seek to improve community-based natural resource management for sustainable rural development. Increasing participation of African grassroots enterprises and producer groups in trade and investment relationships with the U.S. and within Africa is another primary focus of ADF. Finally, ADF will work to strengthen civil society and local governance and to encourage African governments to expand grassroots participation in policy-making and resource allocation processes. Examples of projects which will be funded are: micro-finance capital; business development services, training and technical assistance; soil and water reclamation; civil education; and advocacy training.

(2) Enhance U.S. assistance and relations with Africa.—ADF will share its experience and encourage expanded U.S. funding for participatory grassroots development, improve program and policy coordination on grassroots development among U.S. foreign assistance and foreign policy agencies, and leverage public and private resources through strategic partnerships.

(3) Expand use of participatory development policies and practices.—ADF will intensify its efforts to develop, evaluate and disseminate new interventions and methodologies for participatory development, and encourage African governments to increase utilization of participatory development "best practices."

Recent financial developments in Asia have required an urgent response from the international community. The United States, independently and through the multilateral mechanism of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), has taken a strong lead in shaping the international response to the threat of more widespread financial instability. The IMF has acted quickly to provide financial support in conjunction with strong policy direction to the affected countries in the region, mitigating the spillover effects from their financial crises on the global economy, and consequently on U.S. output and employment. It is imperative that the United States continue to provide strong leadership in the IMF and to support the IMF's efforts to bring about fundamental economic and financial sector reforms in these countries that establish the foundation for renewed growth. In consultation with Congress, the Administration expects to request a supplemental appropriation for 1998 for an increase in the U.S. quota of the IMF and for U.S. participation in the New Arrangements to Borrow (NAB) so that the IMF remains an effective promoter of international financial stability, which is essential to continued U.S. economic growth.

Quota Increase.—The International Monetary Fund, established in 1945, is a multilateral organization of 182 member nations. Its functions include: promoting international monetary cooperation and exchange rate stability; facilitating the development of the productive resources of its members; and, consistent with these objectives, providing financial assistance with adequate safeguards to allow members to correct prolonged payments imbalances without resort to measures harmful to the international monetary system. The IMF is a subscription-based institution. Members' quota subscriptions are the primary source of the IMF's funding for members seeking to redress the underlying causes of severe and prolonged external payments problems. IMF quotas have not been increased since 1992.

The IMF membership completed the Eleventh Review of Quotas in September of 1997 and agreed on the need for a 45% overall increase in quotas to maintain the IMF's relative influence in relation to the growing international capital markets and its ability to respond effectively to financial crises. Recent IMF programs to provide crisis assistance in Asia have drawn heavily on the Fund's existing quota resources, reducing them to relatively low levels. The United States urgently needs to provide its share of the IMF's proposed $87 billion increase in regular resources so that the IMF can continue to meet members' anticipated demands while coping with additional exceptional calls under current crisis conditions should they arise.

In consultation with Congress, the Administration expects to request a supplemental appropriation for 1998 amounting to the U.S. dollar equivalent of 10,622.5 million Special Drawing Rights, $14.5 billion, for an increase in the U.S. quota for the IMF. In accordance with the budgetary treatment recommended by the Presidential Commission on Budgetary Concepts in 1968 and modified by the Congress in 1980, U.S. transactions with the IMF under the quota subscription are monetary exchanges which will not be scored as outlays and thus will not increase the deficit. This is because the United States receives a liquid, interest-bearing claim on the IMF, corresponding to any transfer under the U.S. quota subscription to the IMF, and that claim would be backed by the IMF's substantial reserves, including its holdings of gold. The authority for the discretionary cap adjustment to accommodate the budget authority for an appropriation for the quota was obtained in P.L. 105-33.

New Arrangements to Borrow.—The New Arrangements to Borrow (NAB), proposed by the IMF in 1997, is modeled on the General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB), which was established in 1962 by 10 industrial countries including the United States. The GAB is a set of individual credit lines extended to the IMF by participating countries; these credit lines are intended to supplement the IMF's resources when responding to financial crises that threaten the stability of the international monetary system. The NAB would provide additional resources for such emergencies beyond those available under the GAB. IMF lending programs financed from credits extended to the IMF under both the GAB and the NAB typically require borrowing countries to implement comprehensive market-based structural reforms to support the immediate stabilization efforts and long-term market opening and transparency.

In consultation with the Congress, the Administration expects to request a 1998 supplemental appropriation amounting to the dollar equivalent of 2,462 million Special Drawing Rights, $3.4 billion, to cover the United States' share of the proposed NAB. This supplemental request would allow the United States to provide its fair share of contingent supplementary resources for the IMF for dealing with international financial crises of systemic import.

In accordance with the budgetary treatment recommended by the Presidential Commission on Budgetary concepts in 1968 and modified by the Congress in 1980, United States' transactions with the IMF under the NAB, as under the GAB, will not be scored as outlays and thus will not increase the deficit. This is because the United States would receive a liquid, interest-bearing claim on the IMF corresponding to any transfer under the NAB to the IMF, and that claim would be backed by the IMF's substantial reserves, including its holdings of gold. The authority for a discretionary cap adjustment to accommodate the budget authority for an appropriation for the NAB was obtained in P.L. 105–33.

The Enhanced Structural Adjustment Facility (ESAF) is an important feature of United States' foreign economic policy in the developing world. The relatively modest U.S. contribution to the facility helps to leverage $15 billion in total concessional lending to developing and transitional economies. ESAF promotes strong market-based economic and financial reforms, catalyzes other sources of assistance, supports the multilateral program for sustainable debt for the most heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC), and advances the objectives of the Administration's Partnership for Growth and Opportunity in Africa. Countries that borrow from ESAF are usually required to adopt strong multi-year economic and structural reform programs that foster a transition to open, transparent, market-based economic activity. ESAF programs advance critical U.S. interests in promoting economic growth, financial stability, and the conditions essential to foster open and accountable democratic institutions.

Created by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in 1987, ESAF provides financing on concessional terms to poor countries with protracted balance of payments problems. These poor countries, most of which are in Africa or were part of the former Soviet Union, generally do not have access to private capital flows and are otherwise dependent principally upon direct aid flows from official bilateral sources to meet their external financing needs. ESAF obtains its resources from members of the IMF through loans to the ESAF Trust or through contributions to its interest subsidy account. In the late 1980's, Congress authorized and appropriated $150 million for the U.S. contributions to the initial ESAF interest subsidy account. In 1994 the IMF membership agreed to an expanded and enlarged successor ESAF, bringing the total amount available for loans to roughly $15 billion. The Administration offered to contribute an additional $100 million to the interest subsidy account to help support the enlarged loan capacity under this expanded ESAF. This $100 million would outlay over a 15-year period. The Congress authorized and appropriated $25 million of this amount in 1995. There is still $75 million outstanding from this commitment.

The Administration is seeking an appropriation of $7 million for 1999 to meet part of the remaining $75 million commitment to the enlarged ESAF. It is also seeking authorization for this $75 million.

Therefore, the Congress declares that, subject to the availability of appropriations, it is the policy and the intention of the United States that the funds provided in annual appropriations for the Economic Support Fund which are allocated to Israel shall not be less than the annual debt repayment (interest and principal) from Israel to the United States Government in recognition that such a principle serves United States interests in the region.]
