Printers Across America Score Big With GPO Partnership
Government Printing Office Releases Top 10 Printers for First Half of 2005

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The U.S. Government Printing Office has released the top ten private sector printers it has worked with in the first six months of the year to meet the government's information and printing needs. The GPO produces key Congressional and security and intelligent documents in-house, and contracts out the majority of other printing and publishing requirements to private sector printers across the country.

"This successful partnership between the GPO and the printing industry is a model of how the Federal Government and the private sector can work together for the benefit of the public," said Jim Bradley, Managing Director of Customer Services. "It's a win-win for everyone as GPO is able to meet the printing and information requirements of the Government in a cost-effective manner for the taxpayer, and printers have an opportunity for added revenue."

GPO works with private sector printing establishments from every corner of the country, providing thousands of companies the opportunity to do business with the Federal Government. These vendors provide the full range of printing and publishing services needed to fulfill the 600 to 1,000 print-related contracts the GPO procures daily.

GPO's Top Ten printers from January 1 to June 30, 2005 by Dollar Value are:

It is now easier than ever for private sector printers to participate in GPO's purchasing program. Printers and other contractors may register online at www.contractorconnect.gpo.gov by simply clicking on "New Online Registration for GPO Contractors." Bidding opportunities and information on how to do business with the GPO are also available at this site.

The GPO's core mission is to ensure that the American public has access to government information. The GPO is the Federal Government's primary centralized resource for gathering, cataloging, producing, providing, authenticating, and preserving published U.S. Government information in all its forms. GPO is responsible for the production and distribution of information products and services for all three branches of the Federal Government. In addition to publication sales, GPO makes government information available at no cost to the public through GPO Access (www.gpoaccess.gov), and through partnerships with more than 1,250 libraries nationwide participating in the Federal Depository Library Program.
